1. The first of these is the fact that the Yiddish language is a living language, and not a dead one. It is a language that is still spoken by millions of people, and it is a language that is still being used in literature, art, and science. This is a very important fact, because it means that the Yiddish language is still a part of the cultural heritage of the Jewish people, and it is still a part of the life of the Jewish community.

S I R,

I Received yours, and do not think it strange, that those of England are so desirous to know the Acts and Proceedings of our General Assembly in Scotland; for not only Curiosity but Interest may prompt them thereto: I will readily serve you in this Matter, and intended, though you had not required it, to have given you an Account of it, that you might have Occasion of gratifying your worthy Friends and Acquaintance. It's true, I was not Eye-Witness of what past; for you know my Circumstances would not allow that; and the Brethren (as they call themselves) endeavoured to keep out all that were not of their own party, or who might tell Tales; forbidding the Keepers of the door to admit any without a leaden Ticket in the shape of a Heart, which was the Pass given them, which was not so easily obtain'd, except for their particular Friends; and if any of the Episcopal Party were discovered, there was a Cry presently, Conformists are here; and the Officers were sent to thrust them out. However notwithstanding of this strictness, there were always two or three discreet and intelligent Persons of my Acquaintance present at every Session, from whom I have what I write to you. And I assure you that you may trust the Ingenuity and Faithfulness of the Relation. But before I come to the Assembly it self, there be some things previous to it which you ought to be informed of. A General Assembly in Scotland (you know) is much of the same Nature with the Convocation in England, or a National Council; and of no less Authority here: Nay, our Presbyterians exalt the Authority of their Assemblies above that of King or Parliament; and there be some standing Acts of their Assemblies against Acts of Parliament, and which discharge Obedience to them: Whereupon our Presbyterians being not content with what the Parliament had done for them, nor thinking their Authority sufficient for setting up their Government; they required a General Assembly, by whose Authority (which with them is supreme, and next to that of Jesus Christ) their Government might be firmly established, and all their Actings and Proceedings ratified and approved by it. Yet they knew that a free Assembly of the Clergy and Laity throughout the Kingdom would rather defeat than advance their Design; therefore they consider'd how they might prevent that by some Method, which would exclude all who were not well affected to their Interest, or zealous for the Good Old Cause.

In order hereunto they prevailed with the Parliament, to lodge the whole Government and Management of Church Affairs in the hands of those few Old Preachers who went off when Episcopacy was reestablished An. 1661. and such as should be admitted and approved by them. When these Ministers off the Episcopal Perswasion who had complied with the present Civil Government heard this, they thought themselves injured, and therefore addressed to the Parliament to be admitted to a share of the Government, or at least not to be absolutely subjected to them, who were their stated and professed Enemies. This they claimed as due to them, not only upon the account of their being Lawful Ministers of the Gospel, but also upon the account of the publick Faith, which promised them Protection upon their compliance with the Civil Government: Notwithstanding which, their Petition was disdainfully rejected, and the the Act continued as before, in favour only of the above-mentioned Presbyterian Preachers. By which means all the present Episcopal Clergy and such of the Laity as favoured their Interest, and had complied with them, were rendered incapable of bearing any Office in the Kirk, and of Sitting and Voting in their Meetings. This the Episcopal Party justly complained of, and said; That though Episcopacy was abolished merely upon an unjust and false Pretence, that that Government exercised Tyranny over the Church, yet now a real Presbyterian Tyranny was established, that instead of Fourteen Bishops Sixty were set up, who would Lord it over their Brethren more imperiously than they either did or pretended to do; and that Presbyters were subjected to them who own'd themselves to be no more than Presbyters, which had no Precedent in the Catholic Church, but also they who could not be denied to be Lawful Ministers were excluded from any share of the Discipline and Government of the Church; which was contrary to the very Principles and Tenets of the Presbyterians themselves; who make every private Minister to be invested with the Authority of ruling as well as of teaching; and who affirm it unlawful for any Minister to part with that Right; and who therefore were wont to exclaim against Bishops, because they seemed to usurp it wholly to themselves. All the Excuse made for this was, That they could no otherwise make their Government sure, and that the Episcopal Party deserved to be thus treated for their Apostacy, in betraying and renouncing the true Rights and Interests of the Church by complying with Episcopacy. Hence it was inferr'd that Presbyterians do juggle both with God and Man: For whereas they would have the World believe, that their Model of Government and Forms of Discipline are so much of Divine Right that they can submit to no Terms of Composition with Men about them; so when it makes for their Interest, they can without any scruple introduce essential Alterations thereof: For Parity (which they make the Institution of Christ) was now taken away, and out of the pretended exigence of the Church nine hundred Ministers were suspended from one half of that Power given them by Christ, which at other times is said to be so essential to them that they cannot be Ministers of the Gospel without it.

Shortly after the passing that Act of Parliament, for setting up the Presbyterian Government, and committing the Care and Management thereof to these few surviving Presbyterian Ministers, who had not complied with Episcopacy; there was a Meeting at Edinburgh of Presbyterian Ministers and Lay-Elders to advise about the Affairs of the Kirk, and to lay down Methods how a General Assembly should be call'd and constituted; because (as I have observed) one could not be had according to their minds, after the old manner and standing Rules of General Assemblies. By Virtue of the Act of Parliament, none had the Right to meddle with the Government and Affairs of the Church but such Ministers as had been removed by the restoration of Episcopacy; and certainly these men were greatly overseen when they parted with that Privilege, and admitted others to share with them before they had settled the Church according to their minds: For by these means they were overpower'd and outvoted, and forced to yield to other things than what they first intended; but they were not sensible of this their Errour till it was past remedy. First, the remnant of the Remonstrator Party, who had been actually deposed in the time of Presbytery, and some of them for scandalous and gross Crimes, came to sit in this Meeting; they were very active and useful, and therefore it was thought fit to receive them; but some being sensible of the Irregularity of admitting Persons lying under the sentence of Deposition by their own Kirk, it was therefore moved that the Sentence of Deposition might be first taken off: But the Debate was laid aside and suppress'd, because these men urg'd and pressed that their Sentence of Deposition might be declared void and null, being done Clave errante, by a Factionous party; wherewith some of the old Publick Resolutioners were pricked, and therefore proceeded to defend themselves, and particularly one Mr. Alexander Pitcarne protested against their Proceedings, and threatned to print his Protestation, and to declare their Meeting unlawful, while such incapacitated Members were allowed to sit in it: But such early Heats being unseasonable and prejudicial, they prevail'd with him to take up his Protestation and to forbear the Publishing it. Into this Assembly also were received all these younger Brethren, who had been admitted to the Ministry clandestinely in the time of the last Reign, or avowedly and openly since the receiving their Indulgence from King James. These were hurried on with more Fierceness and Zeal than the former, who indeed wanted not sincerity and concernment enough for the Cause.

————— Gelidus tardante Senectâ
Sanguis hebet, frigentque effæta in corpore Vires.

The Old Men thought that they ought to rule, and bear the greatest Sway because of their Age and Experience, and that the Act of Parliament was especially in their favours; but the younger Brethren would not be impos'd upon, seeing Parity was the Constitution of their Government. And it was said that one Mr. Webster told Mr. Gilbert Rule very bluntly, that tho he was a younger Man he merited more than he, having taken the Ministry upon him in the time of Persecution, when no temporal * Interest did encourage him to it; whereas the other entred into it in the time of Peace, and deserted it in time of Trouble.

* Except the Contributions of the Sisters, which were something to one who knew no other ways how to live.

Mr. Gabriel Cunningham was chosen Moderator of this Meeting, which was extraordinary as to its Nature, neither was there a proper Name for it; For it was neither Session, Presbytery, Provincial, nor Diocesan Synod, nor General Assembly, nor Commission of the Kirk, which are all the Church Judicatures ever have been since the Reformation; but ever since it bears the Name of the General Meeting. Here they appointed Ministers for the several Corners of the Country, divided them into Presbyteries, prescrib'd the Rules of trying Episcopal Ministers, and ordained that where the Presbytery consisted but of four or fewer, the next Presbytery should be joyned to it, which yet in many places made not a competent number for so weighty a business, as the examining and censuring Ministers for for their Doctrine and Manners : For the two Presbyteries of Hidingtoun and Dumbar, where ( you know ) there be near thirty Parishes, consisted but of five Presbyterian Ministers. There was the like number in the Presbyteries of Dunse and Churnside, where there were about as many Parishes. In the Presbytery of Anghterarder there was but one Presbyterian Minister, and when the next was joyn'd to it, they made but three ; so that when it was debated in the Assembly, whether one of them, towit Mr. William Spence ( of whom you will hear more afterward ) should go for Angus ; they pleaded against his going, because that without him they could not have a Quorum in the Country where he then lived ; and at the same time Sir Colin Campbell and Ardbruchill stood up and said, in the face of the Assembly, that for twenty Miles Westward of Perth, there were but two or three Ministers, meaning these of the Presbyterian Perswasion, which shews how little agreeable either their Persons or Government are to the People.

Here also they laid down the Method and Manner of constituting the next Assembly, which was to sit in October, viz. That where a Presbytery consisted of eight Ministers, they should send four Ministers and three ruling Elders to the Assembly ; where they were under eight and above four, three Ministers and two ruling Elders ; four should send two Ministers and one ruling Elder ; and where there was but one, that one and a ruling Elder should come : By which you see that the old Method of constituting General Assemblies was quite alter'd, and that as many Parts of the Kingdom were not allowed Representatives in that Assembly, so others were not represented equally, nor could they bear a suitable Proportion therein ; but the smallness of their number was admitted as a defence for this Irregularity. At this Meeting they appointed a General Fast before the sitting down of the Assembly, to be kept on Sunday the 5th. of October, which was the third Fast had been observed on Sundays within the space of a Year, which is neither agreeable to the Nature of the day, nor the Practice of the Primitive Times ; but our Presbyterians ans are above these things; they have more regard to the Practice of their own Predecessors, than either to Reason or Antiquity; and you know it was the Custom of the old Presbyterians to keep all their Fast on the Lords day: At this time also we had another instance, whereby they shewed themselves the true Sons of their Fathers, who did not confine themselves to Matters purely Ecclesiastical, but who also were always catching at the Power of the Magistrate; whose Priviledg it is in this Kingdom to license Books; and in their Licences to grant the Monopoly of them: This Privilege was assumed by the General Meeting; For they order'd an old Treatise of ruling Elders to be reprinted by the Heirs of Andrew Anderson, and discharged any other to meddle therewith; This is the Form of their Licence word for word.

The General Meeting of Ministers and Elders of this Church have appointed this Treatise of Ruling Elders and Deacons to be Printed by the Heirs of Andrew Anderson and none other. Extracted by

JOHN SPALDING, Clerk.

This was a small Beginning, however the Privy Council thought fit to take notice thereof, and to give a check to these Encroachments on the Civil Power, and therefore order'd the Copies to be call'd in, and the Licence to be torn away; so that after the first day all the Copies were sold without the Imprimatur; and two Friends of mine (who otherwise cared not for the Book) were forced to pay a triple rate for one with the formentioned Licence, which was a new Proof of the Presbyterian Usurpation!

After the Meeting the Brethren went home, and fell to their work with all their might, according to the Instructions given them in their General Meeting. It was expected that they would first have planted the Churches made vacant by the Council and the Rabble, which were more than could be supplied by all the Ministers of that Perswasion: But they were not so zealous to plant, as to pluck up what was already planted; they would would not begin to build, until what was already built was overthrown to the Ground. More than a third part of the Churches in the Kingdom wanted Ministers, and the most of them for more than a Year. But as if that was only a small matter, it was overlooked ; and all Pains and Care laid out in emptying these Churches where the Episcopal Ministers continued to preach. Their beloved West was destitute of Ministers, the Churches there and in Galloway were almost all shut up. So that when the Assembly met, two Ministers declared before them, that where they liv'd there was not so much as the face of a Church, there being no Ministers but themselves and one other : Yet none were sent thither, but they shew'd greater Inclination to seat themselves in the Lothians and South, which is indeed a better Country, but where there was less room for them, and where they were not so acceptable to the People. Many were indeed astonished at this, nor could they either justify it, or well understand the Politick thereof. Strange ! there were already more Churches vacant, than there were Presbyterian Ministers to put in them, and yet so many more were aimed at, and coveted. It was sad and lamentable to see so many desolate Congregations in all parts of the Land, such Multitudes of People without the Gospel, and without the direction of Pastors, and yet they would endeavour to deprive them of this Blessing, who by the good Providence of God had it still continued with them. However they did this either to force the People to joyn with them when none other could be had, or being conscious of their own Ignorance and Inability, they thought it neither fit, nor their Interest to tolerate them who were more judicious, and who would accustom the People to Sense and solid Discourses, which held forth the true Nature and Design of the Gospel, and which armed People against fanatical Delusions.

When some were ask'd why they studied to cast out all the Episcopal Clergy, seeing they could not yet supply their Churches, and why they would preach in a Meeting-house, where there was an Episcopal Minister unblameable in his Life and Doctrine, and draw the people from him, rather than go to another Parish which wanted a Pastor altogether. It was answered, That there was less prejudice both to Church and People by the want of Preaching, than by the Preaching of Men of Episcopal Principles and Persuasions: And Mr. Frazer of Bray said in a Sermon before the Parliament, That it was better that the Temple of the Lord, did lie sometime unbuilt and unrepaired, than be rear'd up by Gibeonites and Samaritans. But to return, Nothing came before the Presbyteries, except Citations and Libels against Episcopal Ministers, and to make the greater dispatch, they sat every Week. The Presbyteries were a perfect Inquisition, who sent out Spies to inform them not only of the publick Sermons and open Practices of the Episcopal Clergy, but also what they spoke and did in private; Neither did they search only into their present behaviour, but also they made enquiry into the former Actions of their Lives, and if they upon diligent search made any discovery of any little Blemish or Failure, though before forgotten, it was made a part of their Indictment. Mr. C. an old Man of eighty years at Lady-Kirk, was libell'd among other things for Drunkenness, alledging an instance fifteen or sixteen Years ago, who as he prov'd the alledg'd Instance to be false, so he said very well, that seeing a latter Instance could not be produc'd, it did appear, that he was neither scandalously Drunken, nor guilty of the Habit thereof. There was a form'd Design of disgracing the Episcopal Clergy, and of rendring them infamous for Immorality; but it will be much for their advantage, that after earnest desires and endeavours to blacken them, there was little or nothing made out against them; When any real Scandals were found, they were loudly talked of, and publicly proclaim'd, and laid to the charge of the whole Party, as if it were a matter extraordinary to find some unworthy persons among nine hundred or a thousand: The least defects of Behaviour were heightened and aggravated as if they had been gross Crimes, and what was no fault was made one by a perverse and sinister Interpretation and uncharitable Construction. When more heinous Crimes were wanting, the Libels were stuff'd and swell'd with Articles, which of themselves amounted to nothing;

but accumulated together, were by them look'd upon and sustained as amounting to a great guilt. And when nothing could be devised against the Minister himself, he was accused for his Elders and Parishioners, if they could be tax'd for any real or apparent Crimes; For then it was said, that he prophaned the Holy Ordinance of the Lords Supper, because he was assisted by such Elders, in the Administration of it; and that he admitted such persons, whereas yet neither the one nor the other were under Church Censure or legal Conviction. The Libels were generally so frivolous and impertinent that they ought to have been rejected with Scorn; but whatever was offered by the Bygots was admitted, and all care and caution us'd not to discourage them. The great Scandals of Mr. Couper and Mr. Graham Ministers at Dumfermline were the admitting Persons promiscuously to the Sacrament; the profaning the Lords Day in suffering people to bring in Kail, and fan Barly for the Pot that day; and by allowing their Children to play with others, though they were very much under that age, which even in the opinion of Jewish Doctors was obliged to the strict observation of the Sabbath. Another Minister was design'd to be libelled for plucking a few Pease on Sunday; but that being so parallel to the case of the Disciples, which our Saviour defended, it was not permitted to be made use of. One was accused because he sometimes Whistled; And another because one time playing at Bowls, he broke an innocent Jest, which none could have construed Prophane, but they who were impure.

If any had at any time publicly or privately express'd any Zeal for Episcopacy, or reflected on the Covenant, and the Principles and Practices of the Presbyterians, who now always assume the names of the Godly, and the peculiar people of God, or if it could have been alledged, that they had any ways, tho never so indirectly, or even in obedience to the Magistrate, been the occasion of any trouble or uneasiness to them, this was never omitted; but was sure to be made a main Article of their Libel. Thus Mr. Crawford (the old Gentleman mentioned before) was accused for calling the Covenant a Band of Rebellion.

lion. Mr. Heriot, Minister at Dalkeith was libelled, as calling Monmouth and Argyle Rebels and Traitors, because he read the Proclamation set forth against them, and which was appointed to be read in Churches * by the King and Council. And a cer- * At the tain Great Man was so picqu'd at him upon this account, that end of he would neither hear his Defences against the other Articles this Let-of the Libel, nor yet interpose his Authority (which was then ter, vid.
 the highest in the State) for keeping him in the Exercise of Informahis Ministry, though it was desired by the Generality, and the tion gro-best of his Parish. Mr. Wood of Dumbar was charged in his in by M.
 Libel with Cruelty, and a persecuting Spirit, because he per- Heriot suaded a Friend of his to put away a Servant who would the Pri-not keep the Church, and thereby made both her self and her Council Mistress liable to the Law: He was also accused for saying to one who exprest his fears, as if the Liturgy of the Church of England would be introduced among them, God send us no worse; and that he had never exprest his thankfulness to God, for the deliverance of the Land from Popery and Prelacy. To the first he reply'd, That he was indeed sorry if any such Expression had dropt from him, because he was sensible it was too mean for so great and so glorious a Church as that of England: To the other he said, That he thanked God heartily for any deliverance that the Land had from Popery, but he could not do so for the overthrow of Prelacy, unless he either acted the Hypocrite, or was convinced that Presbytery was the greater Blessing, and the more Ancient and Apostolical Government; which he never yet saw made out. Mr. Graham (whom I mentioned before) had in his Libel imputed to him, the taking the Oaths of Allegiance and Canonical Obedience, which, they said, shewed him incorrigibly Episcopal. Mr. Conper had added to his Libel his taking the Oath of the Test. Mr. Johnstone of Salin was accused for being too much affected to the Episcopal Government, and for recommending superstitious and erroneous Books to the people, as they were pleas'd to call the Whole Duty Man, which was expressly mentioned. Another Mr. Johnstone Minister of Burnt Island was libell'd, for conversing with some persons whom they alledg'd to be no Friends to the

the Government either of Church, or State ; and for using the Doxology, &c. which, &c. could only refer to the Creed and Lords Prayer. The Minister of Abbots-Hall was accused for neglecting the Catechism of the Westminster Divines, and using that which was first set forth by the Synod of Edinburgh, and afterwards enlarged by the Reverend and pious Bishop Scowgal : The Catechism ( I must tell you ) is as well as the Whole Duty of Man much spoken against, and severely condemn'd as erroneous ; but what are the particular Errours of it which make it so dangerous, I could never learn, nor do I believe you could guess them, except they were told you.

By these Instances you may understand the Nature of our Presbyterian Libels ; I forbear to give you more, because I suppose there will be a Collection of them published : But you must know that they would never give any of the Episcopal Clergy the title of Minister, but only that of Incumbent. Mr. Graham complain'd of this, and demanded a Reason, who was told by way of Answer by one that preach'd at Innerkeithing that there were no true Ministers but Presbyterian Ministers ; And as they denied them the Title of Ministers ; so to take away their right to their respective Parishes, one Article of their Libel was, Their entring by Presentation from a Patron, and by Ordination, Collation, and Institution of the Bishop, contrary to the Word of God ; The Constitution of this Church, Acts of Assemblies, and the Lands solemn Engagements. When the leading Men of that Party were upbraided for making Episcopal Ordination a ground of a Libel ; They excus'd themselves and laid the blame of it upon the people ; but in this they shewed their Hypocrisie and deceitful Dealing. For it was well known that the Presbyterian Ministers were always consulted in the forming of the Libels, and many of them were drawn up by themselves, and that all them were every where of the same strain, which makes it evident that it was a concerted business among them, to beget in the peoples minds an aversion to Episcopal Ministers, as not true Ministers, nor entring in at the right door ; though they were also careful to foist in some other thing to excuse their Censures with the more judicious, who could not be so easily deluded and imposed upon.

As

As the Articles of the Libels were for the most part frivolous and impertinent, so the manner of their process was neither legal nor reasonable; for seldom did they let the Minister accused know his Accuser, and so he might have been made a Witness against him, which is contrary to the Laws of all Nations: Beside, they always received the Libel, and sustained the validity of it, before he was heard, and not regarding what Defences might be opposed, caused him to be cited to hear and see himself deposed: Nor was he suffered to be present at the examination of the Witnesses; but in many places, if not everywhere, the Witnesses were allowed to be present all together, when they gave in their Evidence: By the Civil and Canon Law, and the reasonable practise of all Nations, they who bear Hatred, Malice, or have discovered any Prejudice against the accused, cannot witness in Judgment against him; but this was wholly neglected and past by, and the most avowed, profest, and open Enemies received as Witnesses, and such also allowed to sit as Judges. Thus Mr. Calderwood a profest, and bitter Enemy of Mr. Heriot Minister of Dalkeith, who was the chief if not the only Informer against him, sat and judged him in the Presbytery in the quality of a Ruling Elder; And when the said Mr. Heriot desired that he might be removed, it was utterly refused him. So when Mr. George Purves Minister at Glencorse appeared before the same Presbytery at Dalkeith, he objected against some of the Witnesses as carrying Heart-Malice and ill Will towards him; they having sometime before assaulted him in the Pulpit with Swords and Staves, and taking him by the Throat, had gone near to have strangled him, if he had not got present Relief; therefore (said he) they ought not to be allowed as Witnesses against me, for they that did so, what will they not do to procure my ruin? Upon which the very Reverend and Worthy Matthew Selkirk, who is now settled Minister at Crichton, rose up and spoke to the Moderator; That if these Men had done so out of Malice and personal Prejudice, they ought not to be received as Witnesses; but if they had done it for the Glory of God, he saw no reason why they might not be admitted. If one part of the Deposition seemed to prove the Libel, or any Article.

Article of it, though the other did exculpate the Minister or extenuate his fault, the first was marked, and the other left out; So I was told of one who is since dead, who was accused for saying, that Women wanted Souls; The Witness declar'd he had heard him say so, but that he only deliver'd as the Opinion of another, and yet upon this the Article was look'd upon as proved: When the Witnesses cleared the Minister or asserted his Innocence, they were dismiss'd as knowing nothing of the Matter; but such were greatly encouraged and cherished as shew'd themselves earnest and forward to divest him of the Character of a faithful, pious and upright Pastor: And when they pass'd the Sentence of Suspension or Deposition against any, at the intimation of it, from the Pulpit in his own Church, the whole Libel was read, though several of the Articles were so frivolous and trivial as not censurable by Law, and others of them that contained Matter of Scandal were no way proved.

As for the Episcopal Clergy, some of them disown'd their Authority, and would not appear; Others appeared, and gave in their Defences; and some perceiving the Partiality of the particular Presbyteries appeal'd to the next General Assembly, hoping to meet with greater Moderation there, or at least that before that time the Civil Government would put a stop to these rigid and unreasonable proceedings. Thus matters went till the sitting of the Assembly, and by these proceedings the Presbyterians not only encreas'd the prejudices of those who differed from them, but they also disgusted many of their Friends. The Presbyterians you know were much inferiour to the Episcopal Party in number, quality, learning or good Sense; and I assure you, that now they have lost much even of that Interest which they had in this Nation, many who thought well of them while they were kept under, are now ashamed of them, and have deserted them: I am told that many (even in the West) abominate them: It is most certain that in other places of the Kingdom, they are fear'd and dreaded as a Plague to Mankind, just as the Jesuits are.

When the time of the Assembly drew near, the several Presbyteries set about the chusing Commissioners for it, and things things were so laid, that the most bigotted and hot-headed were generally chosen, and those of a more moderate Temper put by. If there had been any respect to the qualifications of Men, none in that part of the Country he lived in would have been preferr'd to Honest Dr. Hardy; but because heretofore he had kept correspondence with the Episcopal Party, and still prest Moderation towards them, he was excluded. In like manner Mr. Alexander Pitcairn of Dron was put by, because of his carriage at the last General Meeting, though he is said to have more Learning than the most of them; and there were but three others in the Presbytery with him, and none of them, of these old men to whom the Government of the Church was entrusted by the late Act of Parliament: He indeed came to the Assembly, sat in it, and interposed his Judgment, but was no Member of it, and so consequently had no Vote. When these Measures were perceived, it was concluded, That Mr. George Campbel should be also shuffled out of the Assembly; but that would have made their designs too apparent, there being none of his Presbytery whom they could bring in Competition with him, as also they had not much reason to fear any Opposition from him because of his modesty and quietness, which makes him averse to Contests and Jangling. He hath indeed the Character of a learned, good, and discreet Man; and by his Moderation at first he did very much displease his Brethren, which (as I am informed, but am loth to believe) hath obliged him for removing their Jealousies to express himself of late more severely against the Episcopal Party than he us'd to do formerly. As for Lay-Commissioners, such were pick'd out as either were most bygottedly affected to their Interests, or whom they desir'd and design'd to make fast Friends to their Party. In the Presbytery of Churnside the Laird of—was chosen, and in Dunse the Competition lay betwixt the Laird of Lanton and M. the last was like to have carried it, but some one suggested to the Moderator, that it would very much reflect upon them to have both the Commissioners for the Merse stain'd with the Scandal of Adultery; upon which the Commission was giv'n to Lanton, and the other was put by, whom yet they would fain have obliged, obliged, he being one who has at present a considerable place in the Kingdom.

The King you know ought to have a Commissioner at every Assembly, to see that Affairs of State be not meddled with by the Brethren, who indeed still retain the strong Inclinations, which they as well as the Church of Rome have always shewed to meddle with them, pretending they only do this in ordine ad spiritualia. Every one look'd that the Earl of Crawford should have been the person, whom the King should have honoured with that Employment, and his Lordship himself rejoiced in expectation of it: But (to the surprisal of all) some few days before the Assembly sat, a Commission came down for My Lord Carmichael, which made the zealous Brethren hang down their Ears: And My Lord Crawford gave an Indication of his secret Grudg at the disappointment, by his entertaining every body who came to see him with Protestations, that he did not desire it, and with Reasons and Excuses why he would not have accepted of it, if it had been offered to him: But we may justly suspect that his Lordship would not have refused it, seeing he frequented the Assembly, and officiously meddled in all the Concerns of it, even before he was made a Member; and upon Carmichael's advancement, there were Letters immediately dispatched to procure a Commission for his Lordship from some Burgh or other, because a Commission from a Presbytery had been neglected, upon an expectation that his Lordship should have represented the King himself in the Assembly: His Lordship was so humble, that having mis'd of the highest Station, he would rather serve in the meanest, than not have an hand in advancing the good Cause; or be deprived of the occasion of perfecting what he had so zealously begun: He had indeed merited the highest Honour in the Kirk, but all except the very Bygots of that side approved the King's Choice as best and wisest for himself, and the Interest of the State. For My Lord Carmichael was look'd upon as a Man of good Sense, and he had lately giv'n proofs of his Discretion and moderate Temper, at the Visitation of the Colledg of Glasgow; whereas My Lord Crawford kept within no bounds of Moderation at the Visitation

Visitation of the University of S. Andrews, and was much taken notice of for his rough Usage of the Masters, particularly the Reverend old Dr. Weemse Dean of S. Andrewes, and Principle of S. Leonard's College, who had been a Master in the said University for the space of 45 years, under whom My Lord Crawford studied Philosophy, and to whom he was then particularly obliged; the Dr. had also been a zealous Assertor of the Protestant Religion, and design'd to have made the University his Heir; notwithstanding all which, My Lord would not suffer him to have the favour of a Seat, when he attended that Visitation, and when the honest Gentleman's Age and Infirmary obliged him to rest himself on the step of a Stair in the room, because other Conveniency was deny'd him; his Lordship sent an Officer and raised him; such Roughness and Incivility you may think incredible, but I had it from the old Gentleman himself; of the which, with all other Particulars of that Visitation, as also of the Visitation of the other Colleges, I am told that the World may expect a full Account. But to return from whence my respect to my Lord Crawford carried me.

All the Members of the Assembly being duly couven'd on the appointed day, viz. the 16th. of October, they went to the High Church where Mr. Gabriel Cunninghame Moderator of the last General Meeting did preach on S. John 2. 17. And his Disciples remembred that it was written, the Zeal of thine House hath eaten me up. In which the old man gave a greater Proof of his Memory than his Judgment, for the same Sermon had been preach'd on the same Text by Mr. Oliver Bowlis, an. 1643. before the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament at London. I have seen the printed Sermon compared with the Notes of what was preach'd, and I assure you Mr. Gabriel made an exact Repetition, and followed his Authour verbatim so far as was fit for his purpose, only he left out some things in the Close of Mr. Bowlis's Sermon, and added some bitter Reflections on the Episcopal Party.

There was a Parallel carried on betwixt Presbytery and that Miracle of our Saviour in whipping the Buyers and Sellers lers out of the Temple ; the setting up Presbytery at this time was compared to the Work of the Reformation, and was made a more wonderful and signal Act of Providence. The Episcopal Party were called formal and nominal Protestants, who professing to retain the Fundamentals, did pervert and corrupt the very Doctrine and all the Ordinances of Jesus Christ. The Presbyterians you know can never have their fill of Preaching, and therefore a single Sermon was not thought sufficient to open their Assembly, but they returned in the Afternoon, where Mr. Patrick Simson preached, on 3. Zach. 7. Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, if thou wilt walk in my Ways, and if thou wilt keep my Charge, then thou shalt also judg my House, and shalt also keep my Courts, and I will give the Places to walk among these that stand by. When his Matter and Expression were considered, nobody thought his Sermon was borrowed as that in the forenoon had been, for it was Presbyterian Stuff course enough. He ascribed to their Meeting a Supremacy absolute and immediate next under Christ.

After both Sermons they went to the Place appointed for the Assembly ; Mr. Gabriel Cunninghame opened the Meeting with a Prayer, after which he made a Complement to the King's Commissioner, and desired that his Commission might be seen and read. The Commissioner having produc'd his Commission, he desired that every one might also shew theirs; which occasioned a confused Jangling for some time. The next thing they fell upon was the chusing of the Moderator, for Mr. Gabriel could no longer preside, it being against their Principles to allow a constant Moderator. For Persons were in Nomination, the first was Mr. George Campbel Minister at Drumfries, whose Character I have given you before ; the next was Mr. Gilbert Rule, who formerly pass'd under the name of Dr. Rule because of his practising Medicine ; he sat in the Assembly as Commissioner from the Colledg at Edinburgh, where he was lately installed Principal, in the room of the reverend and learned Dr. Monro. In the last times of Presbytery he was an Independent, but now he seems to own no such thing, but presseth the Presbyterian Government as of Divine Institution :

tion : He is of great Authority among his Party, and is reckoned by them a learned and judicious man ; but first he seems not to have the Latine Tongue, for he oft woundeth Priscian, and hath so little Command of that Language, that he dare not extend his Prayers before the Students above two or three Sentences, which when observed made one wish that all the Presbyterians were obliged to pray in Latin, and then they would not be so tedious, nor vent so much Nonsense in their Prayers, as most of them now use to do : Again, the things he hath published discover no small Ignorance ; witness, his silly Gloss on that Expression of S. Jerome ; Quid facit Episcopus, ex- ceptâ Ordinatione, quod Presbyter non faciat : Where he maketh Ordinatio to be the ordering of the Meetings of the Clergy.

* He also published a Pamphlet, wherein he represented the Principles and Practices of Presbyterians ; which is a very weak and empty Paper full of Contradictions, wherein the Scripture is grossly wrested, and wherein several things are obtruded as certain and of great Importance, which have no Foundation either in Scripture, Reason, or Antiquity.
As by this it appears that his Learning is not great, though he hath had the Boldness to enter the lists with Dr. Stillingfleet, so he hath often in his Sermons vented himself bitterly against the Episcopal Party.

* This Exposition of the Fathers Words you may find in the 169 p.
of his pretended Answer to Dr. Stillingfleet's Unreasonableness of Separation.

A third Person was Mr. Meldrum once Minister at Aberdeen, but who hath preach'd at a Meeting-House in the West ever since the Indulgence granted by King James. He indeed entered the Ministry in times of Presbytery, but he also complied with Episcopacy when it was restored. He at first together with Mr. John Menzies Professor of Divinity at Aberdeen, did hesitate upon the Oath of Canonical Obedience ; which Bishop Mitchel of Aberdeen would by no means allow ; so that they both ran a risque of being depriv'd. But afterwards upon a Conference at S. Andrews with the Archbishop of that See, who it seems dealt somewhat smoothly with them, they both subscribed the Oath of Canonical Obedience, and were sent back to the Bishop of Aberdeen with recommendatory Letters from the Primate; upon which they were admitted to their Places, which the one kept till his Death, and the other till the Oath of the Test. I am told that Mr. Meldrum denies the matter of Fact, and will not acknowledg that ever he took the Oath of Canonical Obedience, but the thing is too notorious to be denyed; for as the Primate of S. Andrews assur'd the Bishop of Aberdeen of it by a Letter under his hand, of which Mr. Meldrum himself was the Bearer; so the Bishop of Aberdeen to make their Compliance as publick and exemplary as he thought their demurring and refusal had been scandalous, before he remitted them to the Exercise of their Ministry, caused a publick Intimation of their Subscription to be made in the old Church of new Aberdeen, which Intimation was made by Dr. Keith afterwards Professor of Divinity at Edinburgh, which certainly would not have been done, if the matter of Fact had not been certain: Especially if it be consider'd that they themselves, tho present, did not offer to contradict it. When this rigorous Proceeding of the Bishops against them was in ordinary Discourse complained of, he defended himself by an old Scotch Proverb, which is, That a fiding Mare should be well girded: And it has been told me the Subscriptions both of Mr. Menzies and Mr. Meldrum are still extant. However Mr. Meldrum payed true Canonical Obedience, as much as any other Minister, to the Bishop of Aberdeen, and lived in particular Friendship with Bishop Scowgal, who succeeded in that See: he frequented the Presbyteries and Synods, submitted to their Acts, and assisted several times when the Bishop ordained, and so far deserted the Principles of the Covenant and our Scottish Presbiteryans, that he swore and subscribed the Declaration, when he was admitted Rector of the Marishal College of Aberdeen. It cannot be denied but that he carried himself well, and gained the good Opinion of all, while he kept his Place, and even after he had left it for not taking the Test, he did not desert the Church, nor renounce Communion with the Episcopal Party, until the time that King James discharged the taking of Oaths, and suspended the Laws which enacted them, and then because he was not permitted to return to the Exercise of his Ministry at Aberdeen, tho he was allowed to go any where else, he became so picqu'd and offended at the Bishops, whom he apprehended were the Cause thereof, that he presently struck in with the Presbyterians, and either to make his Change appear the more sincere, or because he had really alter'd his Judgment and the Principles he formerly profess'd, he hath broke of all correspondence with the Episcopal Party, though some of them were his most intimate Acquaintance, and as Occasion offer'd vented himself as bitterly and severely against them, as any Presbyterian whatsoever. And when he was last at Aberdeen, tho he was kindly and civilly invited by his old Colleagues to take their Pulpit, yet he would never preach for them, nor so much as hear them; but chose rather to go preach in the Meeting-House, where he exhorted the People to Thankfulness for the deliverance of the Land from Prelacy, and to be earnest in their Prayers that it might never return again. In him we have an apparent Instance, how great a Temptation even to a judicious Man Picque and Interest and Popularity do oftentimes prove. At first he pretended that he would only attempt to reclaim the deluded People of the West from their Errors and Extravagancies, who (he said) had been lost for want of good and knowing Ministers amongst them; but it was plainly foretold by a Person of Quality and great Worth, that it would appear he could not work upon them, but that they would insnare him, and bring him over to all their Foolerics.

The fourth and last Person was one Mr. Hugh Kennedy, who is usually called Father Kennedy by the Phanatics here, and by others Bitter Beard: he is of a little Stature, but such a one as has made a great Bustle in his time; he was a Ring-leader of the Remonstrator-Party, and with the Scottish Army at Newcastle, when they delivered up King Charles I. and received a part of the Price of his Blood, as is commonly reported six thousand Marks. In the Year 1660 he was deposed by a Synod of Presbyterians for several Crimes; especially ly for being a Firebrand among his Brethren, and for a Book entituled The Causes of Gods Wrath upon Scotland, which Sentence of Deposition was never taken off, till the last day but one of this Assembly, as you shall hear afterwards.

These were the four Persons nominated to preside in the Assembly; when it came to the Vote, Mr. Gilbert Rule had four or five; Mr. Geo. Meldrum one; Mr. George Campbel forty eight; but the most were in favour of Mr. Hugh Kennedy, and so the Chair was assign'd to him, who came short of the rest in Learning, yet surpassed them in Subtilty and Malice. Having chosen a Moderator, the next thing requisite was a Clerk, they appointed Mr. John Spalding, who had been Clerk to the General Meeting, to officiate in the interim till they should chuse one, but he continued all the time of the Assembly, for there were so many Competitors for the Clerkship, and each of them had such Interest by their Friends in the Assembly, that they durst never put it to the hazard of a Vote, for fear of dividing the Assembly; the Competitors were as we heard, Mersington, Corrigge, two Lords of the Session; Park Hay, the famous James Stewart, and one Kerr.

In this Assembly there was an hundred and eighty Persons, Clergy and Laity. There were no Commissioners from the Shires of Angus, Merns, Aberdeen, or any of the more Northern Parts of the Kingdom; and even several Places on the North side of Tay had none; only here and there in a Corner, where the Presbyterians had seated themselves, and assumed the name of a Presbytery, there were one or two chosen and Commissionated to represent them in the Assembly. None of the Universities or Colleges had any Representatives there, save that of Edinburgh, whom Mr. Gilbert Rule represented; so that this was no more a General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, than that of Trent can be called a General Council of the Catholick Church; nor did any other Spirit rule in the one than what prevailed in the other, I mean a Spirit of Faction, Interest and Prejudice, as will appear by the Consideration of their Proceedings, though there were Prayers enough put up for another Spirit, if they had been disposed for it.

The

The Presbyterians of Scotland have always contested with Kings about the Power of calling, adjourning and dissolving Assemblies. They pretend to an intrinsic Power in themselves in this matter, to which (as Mr. Rule says in his Representation, &c.) that of the Magistrate is cumulative, and not privative. The adjusting of this Matter therefore was the first Difficulty brought before the Moderator, and no small Tryal of his Skill; for as in the one hand they had all the Reasons in the World to complement and gratify the King; so on the other it is well known the Presbyterians are very tenacious of their pretended Rights, and very jealous of Encroachments upon them, which makes them cautious of giving Precedents. Now this Difficulty he resolved thus, he suffered the Commissioner to appoint the time of their Meeting, and without taking notice of what the Commissioner had done, he himself adjourned them to the same time; sometimes also to complement the Commissioner he would so cunningly smooth the business, as when he had resolved upon the time of their Meeting, he would first ask the Commissioner if his Grace could attend them at such a time, and then adjourn to the said time; so they always agreed about the time of their Meetings, and by this means the Debate betwixt them and the King was waved, and never decided. There happened a pleasant Passage to this Purpose, which I must not omit; Mr. Gabr. Cunningham presiding one day in the absence of the ordinary Moderator, he asked the Commissioner what should be the next time of their Meeting; but whether it was out of Forgetfulness that he did so or not, he corrected himself in his Prayer. For he began with an acknowledgment of Christ Jesus being supreme Head and Governour of the Church, and then said these Words, Thou knowest, O Lord, that when we own any other, it is only for Decency sake.

The next day they met, and only heard the King's Letter read, and appointed some Persons to draw up an Answer. We expected to have seen both in Print, as is usual, but neither of them has been as yet published, because, as is supposed, there was something in the King's Letter a little checking, which which they would not have every one to know, viz. That he favoured their Government, because he was made to understand it was most agreeable to the Inclinations of the People; that he would have them very moderate in their Proceedings, and do nothing which might displease their neighbour Church: This last did not go down well with them, for it troubled them to be made in any ways accountable to a Church, which in all their Discourses they exclaimed against as superstitious and idolatrous, and into which they are designing to introduce their glorious Reformation. Neither was the first very acceptable, for if the Inclinations of the People were the Motive of setting up Presbyterian Government, when it should (as it very easily might) be represented, that the Inclinations of the People were against Presbytery, and the Spirit and practice of the present Presbyterians, his Majesty might be moved to remove this, and set up another Government. Therefore in their Answer they asserted that their Government was not only suitable to the Inclinations of the People, but also most agreeable to the Word of God, and that this might not be looked upon merely as the Flourish of an Epistle; they design'd to back it with the Authority of an Act; which should declare their Government both of Divine Right, and also the true Legal Government of this Church, which they pretended had never suffered any Alteration, except in time of Usurpation, Tyranny and great Oppression. But the Commissioner apprehending the Consequences of such an Act, thought it not fit to let the same pass, without Advice from Court; and therefore desired a Copy of it to send to the King his Master, who it seems did not approve of it: For it never more appeared here, at which the Brethren have not a little murmured. And if it had passed, as it would not have contributed much to the Establishment of their Government, it being the Act of so inconsiderable an Assembly; so it would only have discovered their Ignorance, Falshood and Impudence: For it is clear from our Histories (as was declared in a late Discourse) that Presbytery heretofore was never settled but in times of Rebellion; and what Enemies our Scottish Presbyterians have been always

to Kings, and how much they were wont to encourage Rebellion King James VI. has from his Experience fully and plainly declared, in his Basilicon Doron, where he cautions his Son against them as the most barbarous, treacherous and perfidious sort of People, who are less to be trusted than the thieving Borderers, or the wildest uncivilized Highlanders. The Argument also, which Sir James Montgomery of Skelmorly used for Presbytery in the Parliament, shews how much it favours Monarchy and Kingly Power, which was this, That it was the Peoples only Security against the Encroachment of Kings, and a proper Curb to restrain their Insolence and Extravagancy; And indeed when they are encouraged, they so restrain them as to make them signify nothing, as appears by their Behaviour to King James VI. before he went to England, and what they did to King Charles I. whom they persecuted and pursued to Death. As to the Moderation which his Majesty required of them, they promised with a solemn Attestation, that they would shew all the Moderation that his Majesty could expect; which when considered was not a very great Obligation on them; for if the King understand them aright, his Expectation will be very small, Moderation being very rarely to be found among Presbyterians.

It being an old Custom of general Assemblies to ease the Ministers of the Place where they meet from preaching, they ordered this day who should preach the following Sunday, and when they were appointing Preachers for the rest of the Churches and Meeting-Houses in Edinburgh, one † stood up, and said; It was fit to send Ministers to † Coltness the Conformists Kirks too: But the Moderator perceiving the Commissioner displeased at the Proposal, replied; That they sought none of their Help, and they should get as little. The first that preached in the High Church before the Commissioner, was Mr. Geo. Meldrum, whose Text was Philip. 4. Ver. 5. The Sermon was framed to please the various Humours of Men, and to recommend himself to Persons of different Tempers, for the general Drift of it seemed to be for Moderation, which both the Court and all good discreet People called called for; yet he caution'd it with such Restrictions and Exceptions as that he might justify himself with the more rigid, and prevent their jealousies and suspicions of him: He who preached the Sunday following (if my Memory fail not) was one Hamilton, who was somewhat singular in his reckoning the Years during which we of this Nation have been deprived of the Gospel; for whereas the rest of the Presbyterians reckon but 28. viz. from the Restauration of the Royal Family and Episcopacy, he ran ten Years farther backward, and made it 38. leaving People to guess his reason, and when the Matter was enquired into, it was found that he dated the want of the Gospel from the Year 1652. because since that time they never had a General Assembly, and then too they were not suffered to sit, for the English Governor here raised them, because they had no Warrant from Cromwell, and carried them out surrounded with Guards to Bruntsfield-Links, where he dismissed them with a severe threatening, if any three of them should be found together. It would be tedious to give you a particular account of all the Sermons which were preached here in the time of the Assembly, but in general I assure you they were very nauseating to all rational Persons, for except one or two preached by Mr. Carsairs and Mr. Robert Wyllie, they were either miserably flat and dull, or else full of bitter Zeal against the Episcopal Party; Instead of the Doctrins and Duties of Christianity, the excellency and divine Institution of their Government was the subject of their Discourses, and when they happened on any necessary or weighty Point of Religion, they treated them in such a manner, as if they had design'd to burlesque Religion, and render it ridiculous, which gave a great advantage to atheistical and profane Men: So it is observed that Religion doth suffer more now by the setting up of the Presbyterians, than it did or was like to have suffer'd in this Nation by the attempts of the Jesuits and other Papists a little while ago; for then it fell out that People search'd and considered the Points of their Religion, and they that were ignorant of the Truth or dis-believed it, came to understand it, and to be convinced vinced of it, and were resolved to be stedfast in the defence of it, whereas now the Contest being about Forms of Government, and Discipline, which generally People look upon as matters of lesser moment, all enquiry into the important Points is laid aside, and seeing there is such Hypocrisie and Ignorance among these very Men who set up themselves for the peculiar People of God, and that they who would be thought as it were inspired, or at least of all others most acted by the Spirit of God, are guilty of base and unworthy Actions; this tempts People to think all Religion a sham and cheat.

On Monday the twenty fifth they met at eight a Clock of the Morning for Prayer only. Some say eight, others ten, and some that eleven prayed successively: One told me he stayed till five of them prayed, however they continued to pray from eight to twelve. The Moderator began, and when he ended he named the person who should pray next, and every one did the like till Dinner time. Among others who were desired to pray there was an old Man who at first declined it, pretending a bodily indisposition, but when it was voted he should pray, he fell to it, and prayed longer a great deal than any of the rest. This Exercise of long and continued Prayer was so unusual, that it became presently the talk of the Town, and people had different Sentiments about it, and put various Constructions upon it: Some said they were practising what our Lord condemned, S. Matth. 6. considering that their Prayers generally are but Babling and vain Repetitions. Others that they were imitating the * Popish Masses. Some dreaded the effects of these Prayers when they called to mind the custom of their Predecessors, who used to usher in some Villany by Fasting and such solemn Prayers, as Tacitus reports of Nero, that when he solemnly consulted the Gods, it was a certain sign that he intended some cruel and bloody Enterprize: But the more probable seemed to be that this was to pray themselves, if possible, into a moderate Temper, as the King's Letter required, or to vindicate their want of it, as being more agreeable to the mind of God, seeing it was deny'd them after so many Prayers. To this purpose one of them had a very remarkable Expression in his Prayer ; for, having in compliance with the rest put up some petitions for Moderation, at last he concludes with these words, But, O Lord ! to be free, it would be better to make a clean * house. This Week they appointed Committees for the several Affairs that were before them, which sat at their own convenience, and now and then they met in full Assembly, but they pass'd away the time without doing any thing considerable, so that some began to apply to them, Parturiunt Montes, &c. The Moderator laid the blame of it on the ill attendance of the Members of the Assembly, and the slow Proceedings of the Committee ; but the true reason was, That they were restrained by the Instructions sent from Court, and the fears of encreasing the clamours and prejudices of the Country, as also they were somewhat retarded by the unskilfulness of their Brethren in managing Affairs of this Nature. The Old Men having for a long time been disused, and the Younger Sort wanting experience ; there were besides some little differences among the Brethren, tho the Moderator did all he could to smother them ; for when there was any appearance of the least Jar, he referred the matter which was like to occasion it, back to the Committee to be further considered, and then as on all other occasions in his Prayer he thanked God for the Oneness that was among them. For they endeavour'd to make the World believe that there was great Harmony in their Assembly which they talked of with a great deal of Fondness and Vanity, especially when the Cameronian Party joyn'd themselves to them, tho it may be justly said that matters were rather huddled up betwixt them, than any true Union effected, and if the cunning of the Moderator had not prevented it, the Breach was like to have been wider ; For the two Persons that appear'd for the Cameronians, viz. Mr. Shiels, and Mr. Linnen gave in two Papers, one of Overtures, and another defending their Practices as being most agreeable to the the Practices of the true Presbyterians, and upbraiding the rest as deserting and apostatizing from them, which reflected on all that sat there, and yet they offered in the face of the Assembly to make good and justify the same. At first the Moderator checkt and rebuk'd them, but perceiving they would not submit themselves, they were first sent out, and then after some time call'd in again, and taken by the hand and desired to sit down with the rest, without entering upon any debate. He told them upon their second appearance, that he knew they meant well, and had done them service, and that they did expect good from them, tho at first he said they were rash young Men, who had done much hurt to the Church. The Sunday following both the Cameronians at Restalridge, and the other Brethren in the Pulpits of the Town, preach'd upon this Agreement and Union of the Parties. The latter gave God thanks for it, and the former justified themselves, and declared that thereby they had neither condemned their own former Practices, nor yet approved of the Corruptions that were among their Brethren. The Cameronians in the Country having got information of this Union, sent some of their number to the Assembly with some Papers, who were not allowed to come in before the Assembly, but some of the Brethren were sent out to confer with them, who received their Papers, and giving them fair Words, dismissed them. The Papers having never been publickly produc'd, the Contents of them were not known.

As to the Affair which came before the Assembly, the first thing remarkable was the Business of Mr. Gabriel Simple which took up some days; He had received a Call (as the Word is) both from the People of Jedburgh, and also from those of Killpatrick, and each of them petition'd the Assembly for him, because of Spiritual Sibness and Pastoral Relation which they had to him; At the same time there was an Address read from no less than twelve Parishes in Northumberland, as was pretended, desiring that the said Mr. Gabriel might not be taken from them, he having taken compassion on them when they lay weltering in their Blood, and no Eye to pity them,

them, and shewing that England was over-gone with Briars and Thorns which would over-run Scotland too if Mr. Gabriel did not weed them out, that by Mr. Gabriel's care twelve Parishes were well provided, which could not be so well done by any ordinary Man; That he had been twenty four Years among them which was sufficient to found a Pastoral Relation. Mr. Gilbert Rule seconded this Address, and pleaded for those of Northumberland, that they might have the benefit of Mr. Gabriel; alledging, that it was Charity to plant the Gospel in England, and he declar'd that he knew not only twelve Parishes, but that for fifty Miles they wanted the Word of God; For (said he) betwixt Berwick and New-Castle there was less practice of Piety, than amongst Papists, or Heathens, and therefore it was fit to send Ministers among them, he concluded his Discourse thus,
 That as we ought to plant the Gospel where-ever we can, so the Presbyterians of England having now a Liberty granted them by King and Parliament they might very well call back such as had been driven in amongst them in time of Persecution. To this last the Moderator reply'd, Mr. Gilbert, What if they should call you? And when he answer'd, that perhaps he would then go, he said to him, Mr. Gilbert, I do not think you so great a Fool. But as to Mr. Gabriel the Moderator and the generality of the Assembly were for calling him back to Scotland, alledging that Charity began at home, when they had reason'd a long while upon the Matter too and again, Mr. Kirkton stood up and said, What needs this ado? For he had heard that Mr. Gabriel durst not return to Northumberland, there being an Order from several Justices of Peace to apprehend him, which Mr. Gabriel confess'd to be true. This decided the matter as to Northumberland, and shewed that Mr. Gabriel would have had his forc'd return coloured with a Solemn invitation; and when it came to be consider'd, whither Jedburgh or Killpatrick should have him; he discovered his own Inclinations before it came to a Vote, telling that Kirkpatrick had no Manse for him, neither could he maintain a Horse at it, when the Votes were a stating Mr. Gabriel Cunningham desired the Moderator to pray for drowning the noise

noise of the Assembly. But Mr. Kirkton answered, What needs all this fool Praying, it was not the Custom to pray at every thing, so they past immediately to voting, and the Votes carried it for Jebburgh, which no doubt was according to Mr. Gabriel's own desire.

The next great Affair was the removing Mr. George Campbel from being Minister at Drumfries to be Professor of Divinity at Edinburgh, which was made vacant by the Visitation of the College, for that Dr. Strachan could not comply with the Terms requir'd in the Act of Parliament. The Magistrates of Edinburgh being Patrons of the place gave a Call to Mr. Campbel, which was backed by the earnest invitation of some others about the Town. He indeed deserves the place better than any of that Party having qualifications of Learning and Modesty beyond what is usual to be found amongst them. But as the People of Drumfries were not willing to part with him, so neither was he willing of himself to settle at Edinburgh in his old decaying Years, especially when he perceived such strong prejudices against the Presbyterian Party to encrease. The matter was referr'd to the Assembly where it was long and hotly debated. The necessity and importance of training up Youth was alledged for his coming to Edinburgh, but he on the other hand said, he was more capable of doing good at Drumfries, and had stronger ties and obligations to that place, and at last added that he not only had not the inward call to accept of the Profession of Divinity, but did find in himself an inward aversion and backwardness thereto, which he thought should not be slighted; for there was in it not only ανταρξια but αποστασια, which occasion'd the matter of the inward call to be considered and debated. Mr. Rule said, That it consisted in the internal Qualifications for the place, and the outward harmonious Call of the Church, and that as they were Judges of the first, so the last would be known by putting it to a Vote: adding, That the Spirit of God was a harmonious Spirit, and that the Spirit of the Prophets was subject to the Prophets. Mr. Campbel reply'd, That he put a wrong Gloss on the Place, but however he would would not debate it now. It was referred back to the Committee and considered again in a full Assembly, and at last the matter was put to a Vote, having before they collected the Votes prayed for direction therein. By the Votes it was carried that he should come to Edinburgh; tho it was observed that the more judicious part were against his coming, being prevail'd upon by the weight of his own Arguments. However after they had resolved upon his coming, they allowed him till Lammas following to remove himself and his Family (as some say) as others would have, that he might in this time bring his mind to close with the Call of the Assembly, because he had said, he would leave the Kingdom rather than obey.

A day or two after the Decision of this business concerning Mr. Campbel, there came a Commission from the Town of S. Andrews to My Lord Crawford to represent them in the Assembly: The Moderator usher'd it in with a great Commendation of his Lordship, and the manifold Obligations which they had to him, and regreted he had not been a Member of their Assembly sooner, and that he had not his Commission from a Presbytery; for which, he said, the Presbytery of Couper particularly should be rebuked, in that they had neglected him. But the reason was, (as I told you before) that it was expected he should have been Commissioner for the King. When this Commission was read, My Lord Crawford, (whose Joy for which was to be seen in his Countenance) stood up, and made a Discourse about the Weight and Importance of that Trust, and of his Unworthiness to be a Member of that Venerable Assembly, and desired that they might allow him the favour which they had granted to Mr. George Campbel, which was to have till Lammas next to advise on it: His Lordship not knowing well what to say, but thinking he was obliged to say something, fell on this Impertinence; which moved the Spleen of the Assembly, and made them spoil the gravity of their Meeting: And indeed who could forbear laughing, to hear one make a scruple of acting by Commission, when he had made none to act without one; officiously attending the several Sessions of the Assembly, and particular Committees, and giving his Opinion in all the Matters that came before them. And what a ridiculous thing was it, to ask Nine Months time to advise whether he should be a Member of a Meeting which was to be intirely dissolved within a fortnight.

After they had sat ten or twelve days, they received a Petition from two Persons, the one was called Smith, the other Grieve, in name of the Town of Dundee. In the Petition, which was drawn up according to their usual Canting Stile, they complain'd of their want of the Ministry there, and desired that some might be sent to them to preach the Gospel; upon this the Commissioner asked if the Episcopal Ministers of that place were legally turned out; and it being replied that they were deprived by the Privy Council a year ago; the Moderator was suffered to proceed in the business, who pressed it with great Earnestness, telling the Assembly, that he knew that not only in Dundee, but that in all Angus the Gospel was not preach'd, and that there was no true Minister there, tho he and all the World besides knew, that except one or two Churches all the rest of that Shire have Ministers settled in them, who daily exercise their Functions, but indeed they are Episcopal Ministers; whom neither he, nor others of that party make any account of, for on all Occasions they so express themselves, as if the Gospel and Ministry were confin'd to the Presbyterian Kirk. But to return to the business of Dundee and Angus, Mr. Andrew Bowie, and one Mr. Reiel declared to the Assembly, That they had been in that Country already by an Order from the General Meeting, but that they had no encouragement from that People, on the contrary they had met with great Discouragements, and perceived that they were so averse and indisposed for receiving the Gospel, that it was needless to send any to them; for they would not get an Auditory except in a Kirk, and the People would not give them the Keys of the Kirk doors, nor admit of them except they were compell'd by Authority. To which the Moderator replied, Brethren, as you have made an Offer of the Gospel to them in the name of the General Meeting, so you must now go and offer it in the name of the General Assembly ; and added, That they would recommend the Affair to the Privy Council, who would certainly see to their encouragement, and to have the Keys of some Kirk or other given them. As for Dundee, which was said to be generally refractory, the Moderator said, They could and would plant Ministers and Elders therein, whether the Town Council would or not. Which if it be not an Intrusion, let the World judg: When it was desired that some others might be added to these two Brethren, Mr. William Spence sometime Minister of Glendoven was named by several, which was opposed by others, because the removing of him would leave the Presbytery of Aughterarader without a Quorum, as I mentioned before ; however after some Debate, it was carried he should go: And other three also were appointed to be in readiness upon advertisement of the success and encouragement of these Brethren. As for this Mr. William Spence, one of the Apostles for Angus he served some years under Episcopacy, but having desired an Augmentation of his Stipend, and it being refused ; he conceived a Picque at the Bishops, because they gave him not (as he judged,) due Assistance before the Commission of the Kirk, which he first vented by passing severe Reflections upon them, and afterwards he grew to that height, that he dispersed Papers bespattering both them and the Government, and addressed to the Presbytery for a Reformation: His Fellow Presbyters endeavoured to reclaim him, and to suppress his Libels, but their Attempts being in vain, the Matter was carried before the Bishop and Synod of Dumblane, who finding him obstinate deposed him, and afterwards upon his further Contumacy and Disobedience excommunicated him, which Censure was never yet taken off, because he never shewed any Repentance, neither made any Application about it.

Shortly after the receiving of this Petition from Dundee, there came a Letter to the Assembly from Aberdeen subscribed by some Phanatics there ; who, I assure you, in that Place are neither considerable for Number, nor Quality. The Letter

Letter was to the same purpose, desiring the Assembly to send them Ministers, and complaining that they had wanted the Gospel for Thirty Years. Mr. George Meldrum was present when this Letter was read, and neither contradicted the Assertion nor qualified it; but suffered it to pass without any Reflection or Censure. Which silence of his was admired by those that knew him, neither could they excuse it, considering that he both knew the place particularly, and could not but be convinced that the Gospel had been preached there, in as great Purity as in any place in the Kingdom: For not to speak of the present Ministers of that City, who have the Approbation of all wise and judicious Persons, both for preaching and other Qualifications. Mr. David Lyall, now at Montross, was a long time Minister there, and is esteemed to have a good Talent of popular preaching. Mr. John Menzies Professor of Divinity, who was ever esteemed an eloquent Preacher, as well as a learned Man, continued in the exercise of his Ministry there, till the year 1684. and Mr. Meldrum himself was Twenty of these years Minister there also; and Dr. Garden who succeeded him must be acknowledged to be both a knowing man and an able Preacher; one who teacheth the truth in sincerity, without respect of Persons. So that Mr. Meldrum's new Interest must have strongly perverted his Judgment, or he may be justly charged with Hypocrisie and Cowardice; seeing, for fear of displeasing a Party, he would not own the truth on so fair an Occasion. The Presbyterians speak much against a sinful Silence, and certainly such was his at this time. Some alledged, that the sending of this Letter was a Device of his own, to get himself sent back to Aberdeen; for one would have thought that the Assembly would rather have sent him than another, because he might be supposed to know both the place and the People best where he had been so long Minister; but the Assembly took no notice of him, and appointed two to go thither to preach the Gospel, of which one was Mr. Shiel a Cameronian. So that as Mr. Meldrum fell off from the Episcopal Party because he was not permitted to return to his Place at Aberdeen, for the same Reason he should now desert the Presbyterians, seeing they would not restore him unto it.

Upon some other occasion it was proposed by the Moderator to send some other Persons to make an offer of the Gospel to the rest of the Northern-Shires; accordingly an Act past, appointing several (I know not the exact number) who were commended to the Council for their Viaticum, as the Moderator worded it, which Mr. Frazer of Brae found fault with as sordid, and then he wisht them to call it Maintenance or Provision, or what they pleased, for they knew his meaning well enough.

But that which is most remarkable, is, that in this as well as the two former instances, Persons were commissioned to preach and make an offer of the Gospel; for in these very Terms it was proposed, stated, voted and determined, as if they were going to convert Pagans and Infidels; this shews their Ignorance and Uncharitableness, and is to some a just ground (tho there were no other reason) for separating from them, and refusing Communion with them, because they divide from the Catholick Church in all Ages, they pervert and alter the nature of the Gospel, and teach another Gospel than what is to be found in Scripture. Indeed they cannot justify their present Proceedings, and all this noise they make in setting up themselves, unless their way (as they use to speak) be of equal importance with the Gospel it self; but if the Gospel be in the Scripture, the Episcopal Party have preached it more plainly and purely than they. And if they teach another Gospel than what has been taught by the former, they must leave the Scriptures, and with the Papists have recourse to vain and uncertain Traditions, or to the more vain Imaginations of Enthusiasts.

Before I relate to you any more of their Acts, I'll divert you with an account how the Assembly dealt with such Ministers as had appealed to them upon the hope of milder Treatment and greater Justice than what had been found in the particular Presbyteries. If you had seen the last Letter they sent to the King, as it was first presented to the Assembly to be approved and subscribed, you would have concluded that all Grievances had been redressed, and that the Episcopal Clergy had received a reparation of all the Wrongs which they had complained of, for the Letter expressly contain'd so much, but the Libel was so gross that it could not pass tho the Moderator urged it, wherefore the amendment of it being referred to Mr. Gilbert Rule and Mr. Robert Wyllie, they made it run thus; That the same was recommended to the Commissioners of the Assembly, and several Synods to be redressed. How true even this is, I cannot tell, time will shew, but sure I am 'twas not done by the Assembly, for they shifted off the examination of these Appeals, saying it was injurious to the Presbyteries to question the justice and legality of their Proceedings, and pressed that the Complainants might be referred back to the particular Presbyteries and Synods from which they had appealed, which was done, and that was equivalent to the approving all that was done, because none would condemn their own Proceedings. The Affair of Peebles is an evident proof that the Assembly was not willing to canvass the Actings of any Presbytery, far less to reverse their Orders and Sentences. The Duke of Queensberry being not only Patron, but also a very considerable Meritor of the Parish, was as well as others both in point of Honour and Interest concerned to have the matter discussed; and Mr. Knox who was called to be Minister there righted. Wherefore the Duke recommended the Business with great earnestness to the Commissioners, that it might be brought before the Assembly, being confident that the Assembly would not take upon them to approve the Proceedings of the Presbytery, who had governed themselves neither by Reason,

Reason, Justice, nor Equity in the Matter; as was made appear in a printed Information which I have here-
Vide the first with sent you; whereupon the Commissioner in-
Page. terposed so far as to get it one day proposed in a full Assembly; but when the Clark took up the Process to read it, there was such murmuring among the Brethren, that what he read could neither be heard nor understood, and some two or three whispered the Moderator in the Ear; so that before the Clark had read six lines, he stood up, and addressing to the Commissioner told his Grace, that it was fit to wave this Affair for the present, that the Brethren were displeased that it was brought in so abruptly before the Assembly, when it had not been considered in the Committee, that they were not ripe enough as yet to take cognizance of it, and that there were several particulars in that Affair which were not fit to be spoken of in publick; to which the Commissioner yielded either out of too much good Nature, or out of fear that the stubborn and forward Men would have baffled his Authority if he had offered to oblige them to do any thing against their will. To save his Credit in yielding to the Assembly, he required them peremptorily to fall upon it at the next meeting; the Moderator promised it, but there was never a Syllable more of it, nor it seems did the Commissioner think fit to start it again. Before I leave this Matter, I must tell you a remarkable passage in Mr. Veatch his Answer which he publish'd to that printed Information which I spake of before: That whereas it was objected that he had not a popular Call to the Parish of Peebles. This, saith he, ought not to militate against me; for if by such a Call be meant an unanimous Call of all, or the greatest part of the Parish; it can be expected but in very few places of the Country to a Presbyterian Minister, and never at all, saith he, to be hoped for in the Parish of Peebles. This indeed is a certain Truth, but it was thought strange to see a Presbyterian so plainly confess it, seeing hitherto they would have the King, and all the World believe, that both their Persons and Government were most agreeable to the Inclinations of the People. Mr. Veatch had not his Wits about him when he let fall this Declaration, and it seems was more intent upon his own particular, than the general Interest of the Party he belongs to; for hereby he gives a Lie unto the Parliament, over-turns the Ground whereon the Government was built, and plainly intimates that he and his Brethren are, and must be Intruders, seeing they cannot have the call and consent of the People. The want whereof was charged heavily on the Episcopal Clergy in the West by Mr. George Meldrum in a Sermon before the Parliament, who thought it so heinous a Crime, that he said, before he obtruded himself upon a People against their own will, he would chuse rather to beg his Fraught and go to America: It were to be wished that all his Brethren were of that mind, for then the Nation would be soon rid of them; and I assure you they might have their Fraught without begging it; for both Gentry and Commons would pay that more chearfully than their Stipends. Now if it was a Crime in the Episcopal Clergy to take the Cure of a Parish without the expres formal consent of the People, what may it be thought in a Presbyterian to come in upon a People when they expresly declared and protest against him. I know no other way of justifying this, but by asserting the Doctrine which one of their Laicks raised from ver. 6. Psal. 119. while he was lecturing to the Neighbour-hood, viz. The People of God may sin, but the Wicked must not sin, and there is a heavy Vengeance waiting them if they do; but we will leave this, and return to the Point we were upon.

The Assembly was just so puzzled with the Appeals of the Episcopal Clergy, as their Ancestors the Pharisees were with the question about John's Baptism; for on the one side they feared the Court who desired and required them to be moderate, and indeed they perceived that it was their Interest at this time to make some shew of Moderation. But on the other hand it was against their Interest to condemn the Proceedings of the Presbyteries, nor could they do it because they

they were agreeable to the Rules concerted and prescribed by the general Meeting; so following the policy of the Pharisees they waved the difficulty by remitting all to the Commission and particular Synods. By this means they secured what was already done from being reversed, and also freed the Assembly from the blame of any Injury or Injustice done, or to be done; for then these things might be charged on particular Persons, and not on the whole Party. However they ventured upon three or four Processes, and by them you may guess what they would have done with the rest. The first was, That of Mr. Lesk Minister of Turreff within the Diocese of Aberdeen, whose Church was claimed by one Mr. Arthur Mitchell by virtue of that Act of Parliament, which restored the old Presbyterians to their Churches whether they were vacant or possessed by others. Mr. Lesk first made Application to the Council, and thought to have suspended Mr. Mitchell, as not being comprehended within the Act of Parliament, which only was designed in favour of those, who had left their Ministry for not complying with Episcopacy; whereas Mr. Mitchell was deposed, and deprived long before that time: But that not taking effect, the Matter was brought before the Assembly, where Mr. Lesk instructed, that Mr. Arthur Mitchell was never legally settled Minister of Turreff; that about the Year 1635. he was actually deposed, and that tho' he continued to preach there by means of a prevailing Faction of Remonstrators under the Usurper, he was never look'd upon as Minister of the place: and that in the Year 60. the Synod of Aberdeen being freed of the force and restraint that was formerly upon them, did ratify the former Sentence of Deposition. And as for himself he pleaded that he had been legally settled Minister according to the Laws of the Land, that he had submitted to the present Civil Government, which had promised protection to them who did so; and that the Heritors, and People of his Parish were for his continuance among them, and altogether averse to Mr. Arthur Mitchell. To prove this last, he produced duced a Declaration and Petition subscribed by the Gentlemen and others of the Parish. Mr. Mitchell alledged that one or two of the Subscriptions were not genuine, and therefore that the whole ought to be neglected as a Forgery. Mr. Lesk replied, That he laid not the stress of this Cause on that Paper, that he only produc'd it as an Adminicle, that he had not gone about seeking Subscriptions, for he looked upon that as below the Character of a Minister; but that it was given him by honest Men, and therefore he had reason to believe the Subscriptions genuine. And if they laid any stress on the Inclinations of the People, if a competent time were allowed him, he would easily prove that they were for him; but at present it was to be considered whether he was legal and rightful Minister of that place. After two days debate it came to a Vote; and the Vote was not whether Mr. Lesk or Mr. Mitchell should be continued Minister at Turreff, but whether Mr. Mitchell was not rightful Minister Anno 1661. and only turned out by the unjust courses of the Times, and whether he was not now to be looked upon as rightful Minister there; which Vote was carried in the affirmative, and Mr. Lesk being called in, was told that the Assembly had deprived him, and ordained Mr. Arthur Mitchell to be Minister at Turreff. He asked the reasons of their Sentence, which were refused; but what ever might have been pretended, the true reason was, That they were glad of any pretence for casting out Episcopal Ministers, who were always in their Sermons and Discourses called the Priests of Baal. By virtue of that Act of Parliament I just now mentioned, all the Churches were taken from the Episcopal Ministers, to which any Presbyterian had the least pretence, tho' the former had complied with the Civil Government, and the other were settled in other places which they were not resolved to leave. So for instance, Mr. James Kirkton who hath a Meeting-house in Edinburgh, and is called to be one of the Ministers of that City went out to the Parish of Martine, where he had been formerly Minister, and forced away Mr. Andrew Meldrum present sent Minister without allowing him time to dispose of his Goods; and after he had performed this noble and heroick Exploit, and preached a Sunday or two to get a right to the Stipend, he returned to his Charge at Edinburgh, and turned his back upon that in the Country, as if there had been no more to be feared, seeing the Cutate was driven away.

The next Appeal which I suppose was considered, was that of Mr. Sleery from the Presbytery of Linkithgow, he was a Minister of the West, who had been rabbled out of his own Church, and thereafter was desired by the Minister of Falkirk to serve his Cure during his Sickness, which he did; and when that Minister died, the Heritors and People of the Parish upon the experience they had of him, desired that he might continue to preach to them, promising that when the Government was settled, they would take care to get him a legal Title to the Parish; but it being firmly resolution by all possible means to put out and disable all Episcopal Ministers, the Presbytery of Linkithgow caused the said Mr. Sleery to be cited before them, who compeiring, was interrogated by what Authority he preached at Falkirk, and how he came to use the Doxology. The last, he said, was the custom of the place, and that he did the first at the desire of the People. The Presbytery not being satisfied with his Answers to these, and some other Questions, discharged him from preaching there any longer, and declared the Church vacant, to which Sentence he refused to submit, and appeared; therefore it was necessary to interpose the Authority of the Assembly, for dispossessing him of that Church which was the reason why he was called upon. When he compeired, the Moderator asked him if he acknowledged the Civil Government, and if he would submit to that of the Church, to both which he answered affirmatively; but when it was asked him if he repented of his compliance with Episcopacy, he said, If it was a Sin he would repent of it. His Answer did neither please nor satisfy them; for the Moderator Moderator told him it seemed he yet doubted whether it was a Sin or not. So finding by this and some other things, that he was not yet a thorough Convert, they deprived him of his Church, and discharged him the Exercise of his Ministry.

A third Person brought before the Assembly was one Mr. Forseith Minister at St. Ninians, he was accused for marrying a Man to his first Wives Niece, which he confessed before the Assembly, and also that he had been informed of the Relation, and dissuaded from doing it by the Episcopal Clergy, amongst whom he lived. All his excuse was, that he was not much himself when he did it, being in great confusion and consternation because of the Rabble that was then up, and who continually threatened him as they had fallen upon his Neighbour Minister. And he further alledged, that it was the only miscarriage he could be charged with in thirty five Years Exercise of the Ministry, and therefore he desired the Assembly to pardon him, and to restore him. This they refused, and confirmed the Sentence of his Deposition, which was very just, and the only justifiable Act of the Assembly from its sitting down to its rising.

A fourth Affair which the Assembly had before them, was that of Mr. John McKenzie at Kirkcaldy. I suppose you have seen an account of his Process before the Presbytery of Linlithgow, for he carried it up with him to London to show it to his Friends there. But in case you have not met with him, nor received an account of the whole Matter, take it in short thus. When railing was practised and in fashion here, he amongst many others of his Brethren had the Church Doors shut against him, and by this means was hindered from the Exercise of his Ministry in that Parish; but having complied with the Civil Government, he made an appeal by his Friends to maintain his legal Right and Title to the said Church, which vexed and galled the Presbyterians, who by this means were kept from setting a Minister of their own Perswasion there. All endeavours were used to remove him: First, They set him upon him to dimit voluntarily, which he refusing, they next threatned to force him to it upon Articles of Scandal. But his Innocence, and unblameable Conversation being sufficient proof against that; they at last pursued him before the Presbytery of Lithgow, upon the pretence of deserting his People. He appeared before them, and defended himself, declaring he was always ready and willing to exercise his Ministry if the Rabble would have suffered him, and allowed him access to his Church, and therefore the fault did not lie at his door. Upon this he was blamed for speaking contemptibly of the Rabble who were said to be the necessary Preliminaries to the Government both of Church and State, and from that they would have been inferring his secret disaffection to both. The Presbytery were forced to vindicate him from all imputation of Scandal, and for a mark of their singular and extraordinary favour, they said they would give him commendatory letters to put him in capacity of being elected Minister of another Parish; but still they urg'd his quitting of that of Kirkliston: and when he perceived that they had firmly resolved to declare his Church vacant to gratifie the Rabble, and some few other unreasonable Persons who were dissatisfied with him, he appealed from them to the King, and the next lawfully called general Assembly. This being the Tenor of his Appeal, many of the Assembly spake against the receiving or sustaining it, alledging that it was not to them he appealed, for his expression did imply that this Assembly was not lawfully called, seeing it was called before he appealed, and yet he made no particular reference to it. Besides, said they, it's clear he means an Episcopal Assembly by his appealing to the King jointly joynthly with the Assembly; for these Episcopallists do make the King the Head of the Church, whereas we cannot own any such thing. My Lord Arbruchel desired the Assembly to be favourable to him; for he knew him to be well affected to the Government, and that he had served the King abroad for the space of seven Years. To which one replied, That he was as well paid for it, he served him for Wages, and so would he have done the Turk too. They were much irritated by his going to London to represent their Proceedings, and to clamour against them; Every Man took occasion to vent his passion and pique at him; some said he was Scandalous, and called him a Drunkard and Swearer; some called him one thing, and some another, and one said he should be deposed because he was a proud, stubborn and insolent Fellow. The Commissioner apprehending there would be little Justice where there was so much pique and prejudice, desired the Moderator to delay the Affair, and to allow the young Man time to appear and answer for himself: but the Moderator replied, That it was best to proceed now, and more for the young Man's Reputation, for if he were present they would be obliged to take notice of some Crimes, and Scandals which now they would pass over without inquiring into them, forgetting that the Presbytery had acquitted him of all such Guilt, and that he himself had given him a good Testimony when the Affair was first brought before the Assembly. The Commissioner still urging that they would deal tenderly and gently with him; Indeed (replied the Moderator) Your Grace shall find that we will use great tenderness towards the Young Man, and we shall be very discreet, for we shall only take his Kirk from him, which they did immediately. So that you have a Sample of the Presbyterian Tenderness, which I think is very near a Kin to the tender Mercies of the Wicked, which Solomon declareth to be cruel; for when they deprive one of his Livelihood and Good name, they call call it Tenders; and if it be so, I pray God save us from their Cruelty.

Except these four, I heard of no other Processes where in the Episcopal Clergy were concerned, that were revised and discussed before the Assembly, there were indeed one or two more mentioned, by the Interest made by the Persons concerned: || As the Business of Mr. Ar- vid. fa-
cond Paper. ries in Dalkeith, and Mr. Wood in Dunbar, but they with the rest were referred back to particular Synods and Presbyteries.

All this while the Presbyterians had been intent upon the emptying of Churches, now at last they began to consider how Churches should be filled, and Vacancies supplied. They wanted Labourers for their Harvest, and therefore they first passed an Act, For calling home such of their Party as were serving in other places abroad; and appointed the drawing up, and directing of Letters for acquainting those in Holland particularly with the Mind of the Assembly and the Necessity of the Church: It happened that of these who were spoken of, one was dead, and another detained Prisoner in Dunkirk. Wherefore one said at the reading of the Letter, That the Assembly needed the Power of Miracles, for bringing back the one, and that they ought to address to the French King to obtain the other. In the next place for the encreasing the number of the Brethren, they appointed some to search out, and to give in Lists of such as were thought fit to be called to the Ministry. And indeed they may come to have enough of them, by the Measures and Methods which they lay down and follow; but they are not like to have many learned and knowing men; for they see light of Learning and Knowledge, and do often run it down: Zed for the Good Cause is the chief Qualification, and serves instead of Learning and other Accomplishments.

plishments. The Episcopal Candidates are thought as dangerous as those who are actually in Office: Therefore instead of these who have been several years fitting themselves for the holy Ministry by proper and useful Studies, they are putting others upon the Design who never studied at all, neither have any competent measure of Learning for it. Brewers and illiterate Tradesmen are setting up to be Ministers. Not to trouble you with other Instances; one Russel a Coalgruue in Fife is made Minister at Kennaway: What Talent of Learning he has you may easily guess, when you may understand that he is altogether ignorant of the Latine: When he was passing his Tryals before the Presbytery, they according to their Custom prescribed him a Latine Exercise in some Head of Divinity, which he earnestly declined; and when they would needs keep up the Formality, he complained for obliging him to pray and preach in an unknown Tongue: Having miserably bungled through the Discourse, when it came to the Disputes, Mr. Mitchel at Leslie proposed an Argument by way of Enthymema, and he denyed the Major, having been at pains to conn the Terms Major and Minor before he came there, and his Instructor having forgot to tell him the different ways of Argumentation: Then Mr. Mitchel putting his Terms in the ordinary form of an Hypothetick Syllogism, fancying he might understand that: When the Syllogism was repeated he said to the Proponent explica terminos Minoris, which was Sed verum prius. Having gotten this Specimen of his Learning, the Presbytery acknowledged that he indeed wanted Gifts, but he had Grace, and that was sufficient; and therefore they approved of him and received him into the Ministry. Mr. Russel hearing that he was so much upbraided with Ignorance, to wipe off that Stain, he offered to make some Ostentation of Learning in a Sermon, by the Repetition of a Latine Verse. The Verse he chose was this common one; Regis ad Exemplum

Exemplum, &c. But alas, the Way he took to save his Reputation ruined it for ever, for he blundered it thus,

And as their Clergy are at present without Learning, so it cannot be expected that their Successors (if they shall have any) will be any whit better; for they have laid our Colleges waste, driven away our learned men, and have not qualified Persons of their own party to put in their places. The University of S. Andrew is altogether laid waste; there is neither Principal nor Regent there, and those who have succeeded to the Vacancies in the Colleges of Glasgow and Edinburgh are known to be Persons neither skilled in Books, nor any part of good and useful Learning: So that they are not capable of directing the Studies of the Youth which resort thither; nor is it to be supposed the Youth will much regard their Advices, when 'tis evident that the chief of them have need to be put back to learn their Grammar. The Narrowness of the Presbyterian Spirit is an Enemy to Knowledg, and will obstruct all Learning; for they not only count it Impiety to call their commonly received Principles into Question, but also they reckon a free and rational Inquiry into the Grounds and Reasons of them to be very dangerous: They are no less friends to implicate Faith, than the Church of Rome, and do not regard the Advice of S. Peter, which is, That we should be ready always to give an Answer to every man that asketh a Reason of the Hope that is in us. You may easily guess how squeamish they are about Points of Divinity, when they make the Cartesian, and other Systems of new Philosophy to be gross and damnable Heresies.

So that if Presbyterianism prevail, all freedom of Spirit, all improvements of reason and knowledge will be banish'd, and the world must be condemned again to hear both in Schools and Pulpits impertinent chat, a Clutter Clutter of words and canting phrases which cannot be understood. They are great enemies to Mr. Gregory the Learned Professor of Mathematicks in this place, they seek by all means to turn him out, and say that these Sciences are not only useless but dangerous: and indeed they have reason, for they are no friends to ignorance and nonsense their peculiar properties. But the want of kindness to Mr Gregory, and the Mathematicks is somewhat more excusable in them; but that they should slight the knowledge of the Hebrew, and other orientall tongues is a little strange, and cannot be justified seeing the right understanding of the Scripture does so much depend thereupon. They have thrust out Mr. Alexander Douglass the professor of these languages here, who as he was a person of a most peaceable disposition, so he was an ornament to the Society he lived in by his skill and knowledge in these matters: he cannot have a true Successor here, for he hath scarce his equall in this Kingdom, nor Perhaps are there many in other places who do exceed him in the thing he professeth. But perhaps the Jewish Synagogue would have been found so favourable for Episcopacie, and therefore it is fit and wisely done to keep both Clergy & Laity in ignorance of it. Their kindness for the dead is as smal as for the living & they encourage learned books as little as learned men. The trade of books is fallen so low since the Presbyterian reign was set up, that our Stationers are thinking either to quit their employments, or to go and live elsewhere, for they have not made the rent of their shops these two years. The Episcopall are not in circumstances for buying and the other crave no other books then Durham on the Canticles and Revelation, Dickson and Hutchinson, Dyar and Gray, These are their Classicall Authors and the standard of their learning: and 'tis from those that they take the heads of their Sermons, and the instructions which they tender the people. But tho' learning be not the talent of a Presbyterian, yet they have arrogated to themselves the gift of preaching; they have the name of Powerfull Soul-searching-Preachers: whereas the Episcopall Ministers are only named dry moral Lecturers, and under this name flouted and abused both in Sermons and prayers.

So vain were they of this gift of preaching that for some time we had a new Sermon published by them every week; they thinking thereby to gain and profeliterate the whole nation. But the Stratageme failed them, nay it prov'd to their prejudice; for thereby peoples curiosity was diverted from hearing them in the Churches, where they could not expect other than noise and nonsense, seeing there was so much babble & in their printed, & consequently more deliberate discourses. An acquaintance of yours hath made a rare Collection of notes of their Sermons both printed and unprinted. To which I refer you for instances to prove the truth of what I have been saying: The last Sermon that was published came forth the first week of the Afs. The Author is one Mr. James Clark who preached in the meeting house at Dumbar. It was a Sermon ad Clerum; preached, as was said, at the deposing of the Parson of Old-Hamstocks, which being an extraordinary occasion, something better then ordinary, was expected: but there never appeared a more silly and empty discourse, nor is it possible that you can conceive so meanly of it, as it deserves. It was even far below Mr. Andrew Gray's Sermons. The very Presbyterians whose gust craves no fine things, were ashamed of it. My Lord Crawford to excuse it laid the blame on the Printer and complained of him at the Councill-Table, for offering to publish it without a License, alledging also that it was without the Authors consent, and that the Copy was an imperfect uncorrect one, which some ignorant or malicious person had taken from the Authors Mouth: But when the Printer was examined, he produced an Authentick copy from the Author himself, and declared that he revised the sheets as they came from the Prefs, so the Printer was free of the faults that were in it, and they could be only charged on Mr. Clark, who it's believed shew'd all the learning and eloquence he was Master of.

But it is fit now we return to the As. and give you an account of what acts they pass'd for regulating the discipline of the Church for the future. The first of this kinde and the first also of any other that passed in the As. was an Act against marriages without publick proclamations; as also against the private administration of the two Sacraments, Baptisme and the Lords Supper. Mr. Gilbert Rule press'd that the Sacrament of Baptisme might not at all be administred but in publick and after Sermon, and called the private administration not only Superstitious but also Sorcerie and Charming, and said further that the same was contrary to Scripture and Antiquity. Mr Kirkton took him up briskly and said that was disputable, that he could buckle him, or any man upon that point, but would not debate it now. He added that by their rigorous imposition of indifferent things he had lost five men of considerable note the last week, And concluded tho' there were a thousand acts against it, he would rather Baptize in private then suffer the Children to go to the Curates. Some Highland Ministers craved that they might not be lyable to that act because it was impossible to bring all the Children of their parishes to the Kirks by reason of the vast distance some of their people lived at from them; but whether they intend to give a dispensation was not expressed. The Moderator to excuse their own practises heretofore said, there was a distinction both of times and places, for, said he, in times of Persecution I think an honest Minister riding on the way, may go into a mans house, Baptize a Bairn and come out and take his horse again. Tho' while they were under restraint, they made no Scruple of baptizing privately the children of those of their own perswasion, yet now they refuse to baptize any except in publick; nor will they do it but when there is a Sermon: and they are so strict upon the point that they suffer the children to dye rather then slacken their rigour. In the Country the benefit of Baptisme can be only had on Sundays because then only there is preaching; and if Children cannot live so long they must take their hazard of departing without that sign and Seal of their Salvation. I know a Parish where two or three persons importuned the Minister to baptize their Children publickly or privately as he pleased : but he peremptorily refused to do it on a week-day, tho' they who intended to have been present at the baptisme would have made a competent number for an ordinary Country Sermon, and before Sunday two of the Children dyed : we had lately in this City a more notable instance of the stiffness of their humour in this particular. A Certain Citizen designed to have his child baptized on a week day at the ordinary time of Sermon: he with the Gossips came in time enough to the Church, but because the child was brought in about the close of the Sermon, neither Mr. Kennedy who preached, nor Mr. Erskine the Minister of the parish could be prevailed with to administer the Sacrament to the Infant, but they caused it to be carried home again without baptism. The people generally take this very ill, and are very much displeased with the Presbyterian Ministers on this account. Wherefore to justify themselves, they frequently preach against the necessity of Baptism, and to talk of it as if it were an ordinance neither necessary nor much to be regarded, and do account the esteem and value which is ordinarily put upon it, and earnest desires the people have after it, to be the dregs and reliques of Popery among us. When a child was brought to Mr. Kirkton he took occasion to shew the Superstition of that Ceremony, and said to the People, you think it necessary to have your Children Baptized, but I tell you (said he ) I know a good Godly Minister who lived till he was fourscore that was never Baptized all his life time.

In the next place, they renewed an Act of a Generall Assembly appointing Pedagogues, Chaplains, Preachers, and Students to take and subscribe the Confession of faith ; and further they Commissionated some to draw up a list of all these acts of Assemblies which were fit to to be observed and put in use, wherein they acted very cunningly, for tho' it be well known that they receive all the acts of Assemblies as if they were Scripture, and pay no less regard to them ; yet because some of these incroach upon the power of the Civil Magistrate , Therefore to prevent the Jealousies of the King they they would not make a generall Act ratifying and approving them in Gamulo, nor yet would they condemn or censure any of them. But they enforced such as were proper and suitable to the present state of affairs, and waved the declaration of their sentiments concerning the rest.

Fourthly, because the Afs. could not sit so long as was necessary to determine all particulars and to give rules and measures for the settling of the Church, in this juncture, nor was it fit it should do it; Therefore they resolved to chuse a Committee who might sit after the dissolution of the Afs. who should have full and Supream Power to Act in all things that related to the Church. It's said, that this overture was first made by the Moderate men, who thought by this means to reduce affairs to a better temper than the Afs. was like to do, by reason of the many rigid and indiscreet men who were in it. Therefore six were proposed to be a part of this Committee, and to name the other Persons of whom the Committee should consist. Four of these six went under the Character of Moderate men, the other two were of another temper, and were joyned to them on purpose to prevent suspicion: But the High flown Brethren soon smell'd out the design, and therefore they first Voted two more of their own side, and because that only put them in equilibrio, they again got four more to be added, so that they were double the number of the other, and by this means the Committee consisted most part of the strictest and most rigid Presbyterians, Their Names are as follow,

This Committee was appointed to keep quarterly Sessions viz. on the third Wednesday of January, and the third Wednesday of April, and to appoint afterwards their meetings as often as they shall think fit. That a Quorum should be ten Ministers and five ruling-Elders, and they were allowed to choose choose their own Moderator, and Clerk. The Instructions prepared for them by the Committee for overtures, were first read and debated on Thursday before the Afs. rose, but they were not agreed to till the Tuesday thereafter. On Munday they were read with some alterations: but Mr. Kirkton and a great many more adhered to the exceptions which they made at the first Reading, and said, that the Alterations were not considerable. He alledged also, that what was then read was not a true Copy of that which the Committee had agreed to, and offered to the Moderator a true double of it, but the Moderator refused it, saying, he knew nothing of the matter: and because the Afs. was not like to come to an agreement at that time, therefore the matter was referred back again to the Committee, and all who had any thing to say about it were appointed to attend them. The next day it was brought back again to the Afs. and concluded; Mr. Kirkton and some others who press'd alterations being absent. To satisfy your, and my own curiosity I used means to procure a Copy of the instructions, and got them with some difficulty which I here set down.

First, they are to take into their Cognizance all references and appeals not discuss'd in the Assembly and such matters as have been stated before the Afs. and referred to them, and to discuss and determine the same.

Secondly, they are to give their advice to all Synods and Presbyteries when required, and tho' not required, yet upon information of any irregularity or precipitancy of proceedings in Presbyteries they are to interpose their advice for sitting processes till the next Synod or Afs.

When this 2d. Article was read, some asked if the Commission had power to call before themselves any business, and to take the same out of the hands of Presbyteries. To which the Moderator answered, no; but they are only to give their advice, and said he, I think no Presbytery will refuse it, which which if they do, it must be Cum periculo, and the Church of Scotland will be free from any imputation of their actings.

Thirdly, they are to have power to visit all Ministers in Presbyteries as well Presbyterian as others.

Fourthly, they are to purge out of the Church all who upon due tryall shall be found insufficient, Scandalous, Erroneous or supinely negligent.

It was moved that the words supinely negligent might be left out, but the same was refused.

Fifthly, they are to be carefull that none be admitted by them to Ministerial Communion, or to a share in the Government, but such as upon due tryall (for which the visitors shall take a competent time) shall be found to be Orthodox in their doctrine, of competent abilities, having a pious, Godly and peaceable Conversation as becometh a Minister of the Gospel, of an edifying gift, and whom the Commission shall have ground to believe will be faithfull to God and the Government, and diligent in the discharge of their Ministerial duty, and that all who shall be admitted to the Ministry or shall be received into a share of the Government shall be obliged to own and subscribe the Confession of Faith, and to profess their submission and willingness to joyn and concur with the Presbyterian Church Government.

At first it was Presbyterian communion, and only faithful to the Government. Mr. Kirkton said that this Article was a matter of very great consequence, and desired it might be well considered, for in hoc vertitur fortuna Scotia, and complained that there was not one word of the Scandal of conforming, which he said was the greatest of all Scandals. Mr. Frazer of Brae proposed that the clause of repentance might be inserted; The Moderator answered, that in effect it was there already, if they look't upon the Commissioners as discreet and Judicious men; for so (said he) they will admit none without repentance, for without that they cannot have ground to believe that ever they will be faithfull to the Government. Mr. Kirkton replied, that they could never be sure of Episcopall Ministers, for many of them (says he) has changed three or four four times already, and they will do it at every turn: Mr. Williams Weir moved that they might be obliged to declare that they should neither by advice nor any other way endeavour the alteration of the Presbyterian Government.

Sixthly, that they be very Cautious in receiving Informations, and forming Libels against the late Conformists, and present Incumbents, and that they proceed in the matter of censure very deliberately, so as that none may have just cause to complain of their rigidity, yet so as to omit no means of information, and that they shall not proceed to censure but upon relevant Libels and sufficient probations.

Seventhly, that this Commission do not meddle in publick affairs or in any thing not expressed in their Commission, which is hereby declared to be given them in hunc finem only & pro presenti Ecclesie statum.

Eighthly, they shall be answerable, and censurable by the next Generall Assembly, and shall continue till the first of Nov. next, if there be no Generall Ass. before that time.

By these Instructions it appears that the Committee was mainly designed against the Episcopal Clergy, who as yet kept their places because of their compliance with the Civil Government. Presbyterians can never be brought to have true kindness for Episcopal Ministers had they never so many recommendations for their parts, piety, or their Interest in the favour of great men. But on all occasions they do draw back from them, and do refuse to concur with them in advancing even the Common ends of Religion and truth. And at this time they not only had an aversion to them on the account of their different principles, but also they were afraid to receive them into their communion, and especially into a share of the Government, because the Episcopal Clergy was double their number, and therefore it was dangerous to admit them, lest by the plurality of their number on some fit occasion they should forge a change of the Government. They considered that the Compliance and submission to Presbyterian Government, which such would give at this time, would not be free and willing, but only out of a necessity to serve the present Turn till they should be better stated: Wherefore either to revenge themselves upon the Enemies of their Government, or the better to secure it, it was from the very first resolved upon to lay aside all Episcopal Ministers, unless they evidently testified a change of mind as well as of outward behaviour. But how to compass this was the difficulty, for a direct Act for this would make their design plain and shew their malice bare-fac'd, it would encrease the Clamours and Prejudices of the people, nor could the state in Equity suffer it to pass. The only expedient then was, to do it by some indirect by-blow, by putting something to them which they could not do; & by this means render them lyable to their censures, or which, if they did, would prostitute their reputation with the people, & turn them odious as men of no Principles, Honesty, or Stedfastness. And as they envied them their reputation and favour, so they thought if they could bring them to forfeit that, there would be little difficulty in turning them out, neither needed they fear the doing of it as occasion offered. It was observed that the Fasts formerly appointed went ill away with the Episcopal Clergy; some Ministers would not observe them at all; others would not read the Proclamation appointing them, because of some insinuations which reflected on Episcopacy, and those who complied with it, and generally the people censured those who read & observed the same.

Another Fast therefore more plain and particular than the former was thought the fittest Stratagem for procuring the ruine of the Episcopal Clergy. The motion was no sooner proposed then entertained, and a Committee appointed for the drawing up the reasons of it, which were publickly read in the Assembly Novemb. 11th. When the Clerk had done, the Moderator said, Brethren, this is a Savoury Paper, Indeed it is a most Savoury Paper, and worthy to be heard over again. After a second reading, Mr Frazer of Brae asked who was to observe the same, whether Presbyterian Ministers or Curates also. Brother, said the Moderator, that is not timely stated, for we must first consider the thing, and conclude that, and then we shall consider the persons who shall observe it. Others said, that what Mr. Frazer had proposed ought first to be considered. When they had for some time exercised their wit about the reasons of the Fast, and the way of wording it, the Moderator ask'd the Commissioner if his Grace had any thing to say about it, who answered, yes, and therefore therefore desired it might be delayed till the next day, which was accordingly done: the next day being the 12th. of Nov. the business of the Fast was again brought before the Ass. and the paper containing the reasons of it read with this alteration, that The Declaration, Oaths of Allegiance, Supremacy, and Test, and some such particulars were left out: It would seem that the Commissioners refused to suffer it to pass if these had been expressly mentioned: wherefore to get the Commissioner to condescend to the thing, they dashed out the names: But he is an ignorant reader, and has little skill in spelling who doth not perceive that they are all couch'd & implied. So this day the reasons were approved, and an act pass'd, requiring all persons throughout the Kingdom whether in Kirks or Meeting-houses punctually to observe the same. I should detain you too long, if I should give you an account of the reasons here, and pass observations thereon. I chuse rather to send you the paper it self that you may see it and consider it with your own eyes, and at the first view of it you may be convinced how choaking it will be to the Episcopal Clergy, who can neither in credit or conscience observe it; nor can any who are less interess'd in the Episcopal Government go along with it, unless they could be perswaded that Episcopacy, is not only unlawfull but the cause and occasion of much wickedness and impiety, and the setting it up is to apostatize from God, & to make Defection from the truth. None can observe this fast for the reasons enjoyned, but at the same time they must condemn the Church of England and other Protestant Churches, nay the Catholick Church of Christ from the Apostles days down to Calvin. The Ass. understood well enough how contrary the design and reasons of this fast were to the sentiments of those who were commanded to observe it, & that they could not keep it without being guilty of the greatest Hypocrisy and mocking of God: and therefore for them, for their own particular ends, to require men thus to mock God and play the Hypocrite, was a horrid and most unjustifiable peice of villany. This shews that they fast for strife and envy, and not to please God, but to ensnare men, not to avert the Divine Judgements but that they may have occasion of executing their wrath and malice under the Colour and shadow of zeal against Sin. With the Act of the Ass. for the fast

I have sent you also the act of Councill annexing the Civil Sanction to it procured by my Lord Crawford's means: and Vide the last Paper. I desire you to take Notice of the Close of it, where the Observation of the Fast is Urged out of fear of Gods wrath, and after that is subjoyned the highest perils from them, which some said was like the Proclamations of one Borthwick sometimes a Bayliff in this City, which were wont to be under the pain of death, and forty Pound besides. The mentioning of these printed Acts brings to my Memory a passage of the Printer; Some in hopes of getting gain thereby Petitioned the Asss. for the gift of publishing their Acts. Mrs. Anderson claim'd the priviledge by vertue of a gift from the King to print all publick Acts and Proclamations; and withall she might have deserved such a favour from them having ever heretofore Favoured their Party, and allowed them the use of her Press for publishing their Pamphlets, and even such as durst not be well avowed. But either because they would have a Printer of their own distinct from the Kings, or that they would not shew kindness to her, who had accession to the guilt of the late Reigns, by printing their sinfull Acts and Proclamations: for one or both these Reasons they denied her the Favour, and bestowed it on George Mosman who represented in his Petition, that he was not only always a true friend to their Interest, but also a sufferer for the Cause. And it's true he was ever Whig enough, but what his Sufferings were it is not well known, seeing he ever lived peaceably at Edenburgh, and had the freedome of a good trade, whereby he is become Fat every way. Other men lose by their Sufferings, but they gain by theirs even in this life. So Mr. Fohnston died two Thousand pound Sterling rich who was not worth forty or fifty pound when he left his charge. Tho' Mrs. Anderson was repulsed by the Asss. yet she would not give over, but next tried her Interest with the Councill; that at least she might have the printing of those Acts which had the Civil Sanction added to them, they being comprehended within her gift. Crawford who thinks all the Acts of the Presbyterians should be like the Laws of the Modes and Persians stood up for Mosman, others pleaded Mrs. Anderson's right, it not being in the power of the Councill, far less of the Asss. to take away their right and property or any part of it. But one said smartly, that that the Case should be stated not betwixt Mrs. Anderson and Mosman, but betwixt the King and the Afs. whether the King should yield to the Afs. or the Afs. to the King. My Lord Crawford thought the first no absurdity, and offered to produce instances of it in former times. But the rest of the Councillors thought they were obliged in Civility to prefer the King, and so Mrs Anderson carried it.

I believe I may have wearied you with the length of my Letter, I crave pardon only to add two or three particulars more, and I shall close. The first was, their appointing an answer to be made to the printed accounts of the persecution of the Episcopal Clergy in this Kingdom. At the general meeting it was laid on Mr. Meldrum who declin'd it. Then it was recommended to Mr. Alexander Pitcairine who did nothing in it. He excused himself before the Afs. in that he knew not the matters of fact and the true Information was not sent him. The Afs. ordered him again to go on in it, and appointed Mr Gilbert Rule, and some others to assist him in the work, and required all the members to furnish them with Instructions proper for it. Mr. Meldrum in a Sermon before the Afs. offered to justify the barbarities of the Rabble, and the usage which the Episcopal Clergy met with, alledging that their errors, vices and scandals deserve no better at the peoples hands: But what Justification & defence will be made by those who are appointed to do it, in name of the Afs. I do not know, but this I am confident, that they will never prove any material circumstance in matter of fact to be false.

A Second particular I am to make you acquainted with, is an Act for taking off the sentence of deposition which was pronounced against some Ministers, especially those of the Remonstrators party anno 1660. I told you before that it had been proposed at the General meeting, but was then laid aside by reason of the mistakes that were like to arise among the Brethren about it. Now the Moderator who was mainly concerned in the business finding himself a little better stated made an overture of it to the Afs. the day it was dissolved: and to obtain it the more easily, he brought it in by way of a surprise. Brethren, said he, you may remember there were once some unhappy differences among us, which some carried so high as to proceed to inflict the sentence of deposition upon some on that account;

now I think it fit before we part, that this sentence be revoked; that as we are all one mans bairns, so we may be all alike stated. Mr. Gilbert Rule replied, that he judged it better to bury these matters in oblivion, that they could not pass a generall Act for reponing these men without re-examining their proceses, which was no ways fit; & perhaps they would not be found all alike, for some might be deposed for Scandall and other Crimes, and not only for these unhappy heats and differences. The Moderator answered him, Brother there is no need of condescending on particulars, and I believe they will be found all alike, and that they are all very honest men that are concerned: So he named Mr. Wier and some others, and among the rest himself in the third person, saying, There is one Mr. Hugh Kennedy, whom I warrant you ken all well enough. To conclude, the Act passed, the sentence of deposition lying upon these persons, was made void, and they declared to be true and lawfull Ministers.
 And herein truly the Moderators wit fail'd him, for instead of righting himself which he designed, he raised objections against himself which otherwise would have been forgotten; and by this Act brought an indelible tash both upon his own publick Ministry these two three years, and also upon the present Ass. in that the Moderator and many of its members were both legally and Canonically incapable. Now that they hear this, they pretend that the sentence was taken off formerly, and that the Ass. only ratify-ed and confirmed what was formerly done in these mens favour, and that it was usual to ratify in the first Generall Ass. the Acts of inferiour Judicatories. But as they cannot instance the time nor the meeting in which these persons were reponed, so they never had a byl proper or a vowed meeting for such a business till the Indulgence granted by King James: and we never heard it so much as proposed before in any of their vowed meetings till the last generall one as was already declared; and either the sentence lying upon these persons was valid or not: If it was not, then what needed such a Solemn annulling of it by an Act of the Generall Ass.
 But if it was valid, then the Ass. approved of men who were contumacious to the discipline & government of their own Church; for they received such to be members of the Ass. and also choosed one of that Gang to preside in it, whatever may be said as to the deposition of the se

these men, if it was found expedient that the Afs. should pass a Verdict on it, it had been prudent and proper to have done it before their admission as members; and if the Credit of the Afs. had been regarded, they would not have chosen a Moderator against whom there was such a considerable exception: certainly a less reason may invalidate the Authority of the Afs. render it unlawful and unworthy to be owned and submitted to.

The last particular I shall trouble you with is about the choosing Commissioners to go from the Afs. to the King to make a true representation of their proceedings, to intreat the continuance of his favour, and to vindicate themselves from the aspersions of their enemies. It is said that Mr. Carstairs whom the King had sent down with letters of instruction to the Afs. expected that they would have honoured him with that trust; but whether it was out of any Jealousy of his conduct or faithfulness, or if it was to gratify others who might have had particular designs of their own they passed by Mr. Carstairs, and gave the Employment to Mr. Gilbert Rute and Mr. David Blair. The first I have often had occasion to mention, the other preached in a meeting house here; he is said to be not so coarse but something better Polished than other common Presbyterians: He is Son to Mr. Robert Blair Minister at St. Andrews, who was famous for many things but especially his Civility to King Charles the 2d. when he made him a visit at his own house. Mr. Blair when the King came in was sitting in a Chair, and it seems at the time under a bodily infirmity which both kept him from rising and excused it, when Mrs. Blair ran to to fetch a Chair to the King, he said, My heart do not trouble your self, he is a young man he may draw in one to himself.

At last I come to the dissolution of the Assembly, which was talked of severall days before, and actually concluded and resolved upon Nov. 13. Their last Sederunt was in the afternoon, and continued till it was night. There they debated the calling of another Afs. and the time of its sitting; some were for one month, some were for another, and there were few months of the year but was favoured by one or other as fittest for an Afs. In the midst of these debates among themselves, the Commissioner (whose advise they never sought in the affair) stood up and dissolved them in the Kings name, and by the same Authority called and appointed another to meet on the first of Nov. next to come, 1691. The Assembly was Surprized with this, but it would seem they thought not fit to call it in question, therefore they submitted: and all was concluded with a prayer and Psalm: The Psalm they Sung was the 133.

Thus ended our famous Assembly: an account whereof I have given you as fully and exactly as I could: I was not overhasty to believe any information till I found it confirmed by two or three others: If I be mistaken in some small circumstances, which the best Historians may erre in; I am

I am sure no material falshood can be charged upon me, Let it be no prejudice against the truth of my relation, that I sometimes appear no friend to the Party ; but tho' I be not, I will not willingly and wittingly lye upon them. I need not assure you of my ingenuity who knows that I hate to utter a lye, either for advancing the best cause or destroying the worst. But I confess I can hardly bridle my passion when I consider the error and injustice, the unreasonableness and Hypocrisy which these people are guilty of, who if you will take their word for it are the only true Godly, and who only have a sense of Religion and the practise of it : but I am confident neither Church nor Religion will prosper till that Spirit be cast out which possesses them. I pray God convert them, and let out much of his Spirit upon them, and all others, that our Land may have peace, and that the divisions of our Church may be healed ; that our Confusions may be wholly removed, and order and good Government restored, and that the worship of God may be duly and decently performed as may best tend to the advancement of his Glory, and the good and Edification of the Souls of his people, with this prayer for the Church, and my hearty wishes for your self, I take my leave at this time.

PARISH of PEEBLES;

M<sup>R</sup>. WILLIAM VEATCH.

THE late Mr. John Hay Minister of the Gospel at Peebles, being by Bodily Pain and Sickness utterly disabled for the publick Exercise of his Ministry, and apprehending the time of his Departure to be approaching; Out of a deep concern for his Flock, after the Example of good and faithful Pastors in all Ages, resolved to look out for a Successor; And for that effect, wrote to the Duke of Queensberry, (then undoubted Patron of the Parish of Peebles) to nominate some Able and Godly Minister, who might assist him as a Helper during his Life, and to whom he might recommend and leave his Charge at his Death. His Grace being well satisfied with so Pious a desire, remits the choice to himself, whereupon he calls and invites Mr. Robert Knocks, one of the Ministers of the City of Glasgow, who having accepted the Call, and to the great Comfort of the Pastor and People, served the Cure for sometime: The sick Man had his peaceable Exit in the Lord, solacing himself in this; That he had not left his Flock as Sheep without a Shepherd; Immediately after whose Decease, the Heritors, Elders, and Parochioners, did apply themselves to the Duke's Factor, to Petition the Duke then at London, and to acquaint him, that they Unanimously desired Mr. Robert Knocks to be their Minister, in place of the deceased Mr. John Hay, which accordingly the Duke agreed to, and ordered Mr. Knox to continue in the Exercise of his Ministry there. And thereafter upon the 17th of November 1689, being the Lord's Day after Sermons, the Session being sitting, and the Duke's Letter read unto them, the whole Heritors, Elders, and Parochioners then present, did Unanimously and Cheerfully receive the said Letter and Nomination, and promised to Mr. Knox all the Encouragement that could be expected from a Dutiful People; And the Session did order the Lairds of Haystoun, and Halkshaw, William Plenderleith, John Hope, and John Gevan, late Provosts of Peebles, to wait upon the Duke at his Return, and give him Thanks in all their Names for his care of them. After which time Mr. Knox having all the right to be Minister at Peebles, which the state of the Church could then admit of, viz. Designation and Appointment of the Patron, with the Consent and Concurrence of the Heritors, Elders, and

and by far the greatest and most substantial part of the People, and wanting only the formality of an Induction or Institution, in regard there was no Legal Ecclesiastical Judicatory then in being to confer it on him, continued in the free and peaceable Exercise of his Ministry, until the sixteenth of February 1690, when some violent Interruption being offered unto him by a Company of Unruly People, as he was coming to the Church on the Lord's Day in the Morning; the Heritors, Elders and People as aforesaid, were so much concerned, that by an express Obligation subscribed under their Hands, they declare their Resolution to adhere to the said Mr. Knox as their Minister; And Commissioned some of their Number to pursue that high Riot, before the Most Honourable Lords of their Majesties Privy Council; Upon whose Complaint and Application, the Lords of Council finding Mr. Knox to have good Right to serve the Cure at the Church of Peebles, did justly punish the Author of the Tumult, and oblige the Magistrates of Peebles, to take such care of the Peace, that there might be no Interruption offered to him for the Future, and thereafter he enjoyed his Ministry comfortably and peaceably, until the Presbytery having as would seem by all their posterior Acts, resolved to Thrust him out, and obtrude another on the Parish, did by their Act of the 24th of July last at Kirkurd, without ever examining his Right and Title, or giving him any Citation, Proceeding upon a false Supposition, as if he had possest himself wrongously of the Church, required him to forbear Preaching, till he should be allowed by them. The Extract of which Act, being delivered to him by the present Provost of Peebles most unseasonably upon the Lord's Day thereafter, just as he was going to the Pulpit; he taking it as the Act plainly bears, to be only a Temporary restraint, till such time as he should apply himself to the Presbytery for their Allowance, did patiently and pleasantly obey it, taking his seat among the Au-dirors, while the Provost fetcht a Minister from the Meeting-House to Preach in the Church, who after Sermons by an Order (as he said) from the Presbytery, surprized the Parish, by declaring the Church to be vacant, for the supply of which pretended Vacancy, the said Presbytery sent Mr. Robert Elliot one of their own Number, upon the 24th of August being the Lord's Day, to Preach and hold a Meeting for the calling of one Mr. William Veatch; Which Meeting being called after Sermons, the Heritors, either by themselves, or their Proxies, together with all the ordinary Elders of the Parish, and the generality of the whole People, Compeered and Protested against the calling of Mr. Veatch, appealing from the Presbytery to the next Provincial, or General Assembly that should happen to be, promising to give in the double of their Protestation and Appeal, with the Reasons thereof to the Presbytery the first Day of their Meeting; whereupon they took Instruments. The said Mr. Robert Elliot in a strange and unbecoming Heat and Transport, insolently presuming to take Instruments against them in the Name of Jesus Christ, and without any regard to their Protestation, he with his Associates proceeded to Nominate so many pretended Commissioners, to go the next day with Mr. William Russel who was sent by the Presbytery, and in the Name of the Parish of Peebles, to offer a pretended Call to the said Mr. Veatch, among which Commissioners the notorious Villain Beatty, who occasioned the former Tumult, was one, who for his horrid Prophanation of the Lord's Day, and villanous Attempt thereupon against Mr. Knox, had been lately and deservedly punished by the Privy Council, to which Call, albeit only signed by Cardronno, who has but small Interest in the Parish, and two or three mean Heritors who have but two Aikers of Ground a piece almost, Mr. Veatch cordially imbracing, came and presented it to the Presbytery of Peebles, at and within the Chappel thereof upon the day of September following; The which which day and place, the Heritors &c. by themselves and their Proxies, appeared and gave in their Protestation and Appeal in Writing, with the most grave and weighty reasons thereof, viz. That the Church could not be reputed vacant, Mr. Knox who had beside Possession, a good Right and Title thereto, and to whom they were firmly resolved to adhere, not being either Deposed, or Deprived, but only Inhibited for a time, by the Act of the Presbytery, and his Right not examined, and discussed either by the Presbytery, or any other competent Judicatory; And suppose the Church had been vacant, as it was not; Yet the said pretended Call of Mr. Veatches was ipso facto void and null, in regard of several essential Defects and Informalities of it, such as the Call had not been made in a Regular way by a publick meeting of Heritors, Elders, and Town Council, but by private subscriptions, which the Magistrates of Peebles by menaces and promises had secretly collected from a multitude of Persons legally incapable of any vote in the Election; Some of them having no interest at all in the Parish. That there were none of the Elders consenting thereunto, and of a multitude of considerable Heritors in the Parish, only two or three petty and obscure ones consented. All which reasons are more fully exprest in the Appeal, whereupon they took Instruments, but the whole Presbytery (except an Old Grave Man who dissented all along) taking no notice thereof, nor to vouchsafe in the least any Answer thereto, accepted of and sustained the aforesaid pretended Call, exhibited unto them in favours of Mr. Veatch, Ordering an Edict to be serv'd for him the next Lord's Day; which Edict being returned to the Presbytery, upon the 17th of September, and called at the Chappel door, compeared again the Heritors, Elders, &c. and Declared their Adherence to their former Protestation and Appeal, with the whole Reasons thereof, and subjoyning some more pregnant Reasons thereto; viz. That the said Mr. Veatch was a person utterly unknown to them; and that they ought not to be constrained with an implicite Faith, to intrust the care of their Souls to a Man of whom they had no competent knowledge; Yea, that he was a Stranger to the Presbytery, it self, and that they had never been at the pains to hear him Preach; that they might judge of his Qualifications for so eminent a place; that the little Tryal the Parish had of him in two or three Sermons, they were in their private Judgement of Discretion not well pleased with his way of Preaching, for several Grave and Weighty Exceptions which they had ready to produce. That for the prospect of a more lucrative place, he had by indirect methods got himself loosed from other Calls, that he might force himself in upon the Parish of Peebles. And finally, that the Presbytery had in many instances behaved themselves very partially in this whole Affair, for all which Reasons more amply enlarged by them at that time, and contained in their Instruments; They did de novo Protest and Appeal against any further Procedure of the Presbytery upon the said Edict, giving in a Copy of this their new Appeal, with the Reasons of it, and taking Instruments thereupon, in contempt of which repeated Appeals, with the most irrefragable Reasons thereof; the Presbytery having determined before hand to institute Mr. Veatch; and for that effect ingaged Mr. Robert Elliot to Preach at his Institution, proceeded the very next day, being the 18th of September, actually to Institute him, in most Illegal and Disorderly way, contrary to an express Act of the General Assembly, holden at Glasgow, December 17, 1638. Whereby it is expressly provided, That no person be obtruded into any Office in the Kirk, contrary to the will of the Congregation. At which pretended Institution, there were none of the Heritors of any worth, or esteem, nor of the standing Eldership of the Parish, (and excepting the present Magistrates,) none of the substantial Parishioners; Yea, in proportion of the Body of the Parish, few at all to Accept of or Imbrace him; in so much that it's informed, Mr. Elliot publicly expressed his grief, That there were so few honest Men in the Parish to receive their Pastor.

In Respect of all which, and that the Heritors consenting to Mr. Veatch his Call, are but very few, and against several of whom there are Competent and Relevant Exceptions; viz. That some of them are not Heritors, and others by promise of ease of their Stipends, and some by Threatnings if they did not consent; And that the Heritors who have protested against the said Call, are not only the most considerable Heritors, and have the most considerable Interest in the Parish, but are double the number of the other, beside the whole Eldership. It is therefore hoped, That his Grace, His Majesty's High Commissioner to the Assembly, the Right Reverend Moderator, and the Reverend Brethren of the General Assembly of the Kirk of Scotland now sitting, May Examine, and take into their Grave and Godly Consideration, the whole Progress of this Affair, together with the Parishes Protestations and Appeals, which they Humbly Crave may be publicly Read, hoping by their Pious Wisdom, to have their Lawful Pastor restored unto them; And in Order thereunto, to be relieved of such an Illegal Intruder, who upon many Accounts has rendered himself unfit to be continued in such a Charge, particularly, because being conscious to himself of the weakness and insufficiency of his Call, partly by his own Solicitations, partly by other indirect Methods, he did influence some few Heritors of Note, to sign it after an Edict had been served thereupon; Again to shake himself loose from the Call, which were Referred to the Synod of Kells, he had prevailed with some of his Friends, to Represent his Call to Peebles, as the effect of an immediate and Extraordinary Providence, which they did flourish out in the several Circumstances, that it might appear equivalent to a voice from Heaven, which he ought not to disobey. Whereas it can be evinc'd, by clear Evidences, That it was a Draught and Design of Men, carried on underhand for a considerable time. And it is left to the Assembly to judge what a gross Hypocrisie and Abuse of the Sacred Name of Providence, it is to pretend an immediate hand of God, to the Cobweb-Plots and Contrivances of sinful Men; Sure, for as well as this Providence was painted forth to gain this point before the Synod, there were some of that Meeting, who could see thorow the vanity of that Pretence; And in special, one Grave and Wise Member, could not let it pass without a tart Reflection on it; Sikelike, upon the day of his Admission, he was not afraid publicly to take God to witness, that no prospect of a great Benefice had induced him to come to Peebles, whereas it transcends the comprehensions of the most vast and extensive Charity, to fancy what other motive could prevail with him, to reject Calls of People that were Zealous and Unanimous for him; and thrust himself in upon a Parish who desired him not, and can expect no Spiritual Comfort from his Ministry. And finally, He has since that time imposed conditions of admitting Children to Baptism in that Parish, which neither the Law of the Land, nor the late General Meeting of this Church has warranted him to do; whereupon several Persons were necessitate to take their Children to be Baptised by others, and some have taken Instruments against him. And not a few Infants have been in apparent Danger of Dying without Baptism, to the great grief of their Parents; Among whom were weak Twins belonging to one of the late Magistrates. All which can clearly be proved against him, together with several other Articles which they have to produce, and can prove, competent time being allowed unto them for the Citation of Witnesses, but which they have hitherto forbore to make use of, out of tenderness to his Character, and will always forbear till they be constrained to take this last Remedy.

INFORMATION

Mr. ALEXANDER HERIOT, Minister at

In Relation to the Libel against him, before the Presbytery at Dalkeith, and the Sentences thereon. And Petitions to the Lords of Their MAJESTIES Privy Council.

The Appeal given in by the said Mr. Alexander Heriot to the Synod of Midlothian, containing a short Information of the Progress of that Process, to that time, is as follows.

Moderator, Being conscious of my Innocence, and finding my self Wronged, and Injured, I here appeal from this Synod, to the first General Assembly, when it shall meet; and in the mean time to their Majesties Protection, for Justice and Relief; And since the Law allows the Ledges a competent time to give in the Reasons of their appeals, I here Protest within Twenty four hours, to give in the Reasons of this my appeal to your Clerk; And withall, I protest that this be Recorded by him. And upon all I take Instruments.

The Reasons of Appeal of Mr. Alexander Heriot Minister at Dalkeith, from the Synod of Midlothian, to the next Lawful General Assembly, And to their MAJESTIES Protection for Justice, and Relief in the mean time.

THERE being an Indictment given in to the Presbytery of Dalkeith against the said Mr. Alexander Heriot, and the Libel bearing it to be given in in the Name of the Parochiners, the said

Mr. Alexander Heriot and Parochiners compeered, and craved that his accusers might be named to him, and that they might subscribe their Charge against him; And that in regard that the said Heritors and Parochiners did not only Viva Voce, but by a Writ under their Hands Disclaim and Disown it, except Alexander Calderwood, and a few others, ex face populi. And albeit no Libel ought to be admitted without a Pursuer; Yet the Presbytery refused to condescend upon the Ingivers of the Libel, or to ordain them to own and subscribe it. Like as, none had the Confidence to own it, except the said Alexander Calderwood, who sat among them as one of the Ruling Elders, and who is notourly known to be the said Mr. Alexander Heriot's declared Enemy (although without cause) and who invented and reported most false Calumpnies against him, of which when he was challenged, his answer was, That whether they were true or false, he had thereupon taken two hundred of the Parochiners from his Communion.

manion; Mr. Heriot declined him as Judge in this matter, wherein he both informed and accused; which not only consisted in the knowledge of the Presbytery (who had no other Information but his) but which was likewise offered to be proved by his Oath; yet notwithstanding thereof, against all Law, Reason, and good Order, the Presbytery would not remove him, but allowed him to sit as one of Mr. Heriot's Judges, and appointed him one of the Examinators of the Witnesses: and he forgetting that station, informed and tampered with some of them, and threatened others, as to what they should depone; and the Witnesses being overawed and interrupted in their Examinations, and not allowed to declare the whole Truth in complex matters of Fact, whereby the Depositions may be lame and weak, and carry a quite contrary meaning of the Truth, of what the Witnesses offered to depone; And some of the Witnesses having desired that they might see and read their own Depositions before they subscribed them, the same was absolutely refused, with this Expostulation; What? do you distrust us? and do you question our Clerk's honesty? And thus they caused these Witnesses subscribe what was written, so that there may be left out the material parts of their Depositions, which cleared their Minister. And not only are there several Articles of the Libel, which are not upon these Heads, to which the Trial of the Regular Clergy is restricted by Act of Parliament, and which are in themselves alterius fori, but likewise there was an additional Libel raised against the said Mr. Alexander, and without any Citation given to him thereupon, or Copy, Sight or Notice given to him thereof; Witnesses are examined, than all which there can be nothing in judicial Procedures more Partial, Pernicious, and Unjust. And Mr. Alexander Heriot having appealed from the Presbytery to the General Assembly, the Presbytery notwithstanding thereof proceeded, and found the Libel Valid, and Proved; and therefore, and in regard of Mr. Heriot's Contumacy (as they termed his Appeal to the General Assembly, which sat in October last) they suspended him from the Ministry, and referred him for further Censure to the General Assembly. But the General Assembly having found no Contumacy in the Appeal, they referred him back again to the Synod. And now the said Mr. Alexander does again Appeal from the Synod, and from any Sentence they shall give in this Matter, to the next lawful General Assembly, and in the mean time, to Their Majesties Protection for Justice and Relief. For thir Grounds and Reasons.

First, There being a Petition given in by the Heritors and Parochiners of Dalkeith to the Synod, attesting, the said Mr. Alexander his Faithfulness in the Ministry, and his Innocency as to the things Libelled against him; and craving, that according to the Act of Parliament, the Depositions of the Witnesses might be made patent, that they might be the better Redargued; yet the Synod suffered not the said Petition to be read.

Secondly, The said Mr. Alexander having represented to the Synod the fore-said Procedure of the Presbytery against him, and having craved that the Depositions of the Witnesses, might be read before him, and that he might have a Copy of the Additional Libel, which he had never seen; and that conform to the Act of Parliament, the Depositions of the Witnesses might be made patent to him, to the end that he might have a Copy thereof, to the effect he might the better clear himself, from any thing that may seem to be deponed against him; yet notwithstanding thereof, (and contrare to Law) the same was also refused by the Synod, and undoubtedly for this Reason, That the Probation was weak, and might not abide the Light nor Trial, for Veritas non querit Angulos.

Thirdly, The said Mr. Alexander represented to the Synod, That he was informed ed that one of the Articles deposed against him, was, That he should have danced about a Bonfire the 14th of October 1688; And that the same was the only Article proved against him, which he instantly redargued, for the said 14th day of October 1688 fell upon a Sunday, and that the Witnesses and whole Inhabitants of Dalkeith cannot but declare, that there was never Bonfires at Dalkeith upon a Sunday, so that they deposed falsely. And the Dancing about a Bonfire being so publick an Act, that not only the Witnesses that have deposed it, but always many others would have seen it, and all the Inhabitants of Dalkeith would have heard of it, if it had been true: Yet notwithstanding thereof, all the Neighbours to that Bonfire, and whole Inhabitants of Dalkeith will declare and depone, that they neither saw nor heard of their Minister dancing at that, or any other Bonfire; yet notwithstanding of that clear Conviction, and redarguing of that Article, the Synod had no regard thereto, affirming that there was no help for it now, it being so deposed, which is no other thing than as if they had said, that they were not concerned tho' it were false, for it was so deposed; and which is so consequential to a clear and positive Redarguing, and Improbation of the Article, and Probation thereof, that the prejudice and design of the Synod to proceed against the said Mr. Alexander upon whatever was alleadged, altho' without Probation, or upon a Redargued Probation, is evidently manifest.

4thly. The said Mr. Alexander represented to the Synod, that he had formerly appealed from the Presbytery, and that it was but too evident from what is above narrated, that they were Party against him. And which was further demonstrate from this, That the said Presbytery and Alexander Calderwood, did in face of the Synod not only interrupt the said Mr. Alexander when he was speaking; but likewise debated and reasoned against him as his opposite Parties, so that it could not be expected, but that they would do more when he was removed out of the Synod, and therefore the said Mr. Alexander declined the Presbytery, and Alexander Calderwood as his Judges, and craved that they might not sit to judge him; yet notwithstanding thereof, against all Law and Justice, they were not removed.

5thly. Several Members of the Synod interrupted the said Mr. Alexander, while he was vindicating himself, in the face of the Synod, and craving a sight of the Adversarial Libel, and Deposition of the Witnesses; And cried out, That the same should not be granted to him, as if every one of them had had a Decisive Voice, and which is without Example in any Judicatory, for any of the Judges to interrupt the Defenders speaking, and to cry out their Opinion, or rather Sentence, before the Defender be removed; and which openly discovers their Prejudice, Design and Resolution of proceeding against the said Mr. Alexander, altho' without just cause.

6thly. The Prejudice and design of the Synods proceeding against the said Mr. Alexander, on the said lame, weak, and null probation, is evident, in so far as several Members of their Number did speak and deal with him to demit, or that otherways they would depose him. And there is nothing more certain, than that they would never have Dealt with him to demit, if the Probation against him had been good; Their malice to the Regular Clergy being such, as that they would rather Depose them for Immoralities, and Errors in Doctrine, to expose them, than suffer them to Demit, and get off without stain, when they are guilty of the same. But Mr. Alexander being Conscious of his own Innocency refused to Demit, but rather to suffer their Extremity, from which he hoped GOD in his good time would Vindicate him. And therefore it being evident from the Grounds foresaid, that the Synod has behaved themselves most partially, and against all Law and Form: The said Mr. Alexander does therefore protest:

Protest against the Synods further Proceeding in the said Matter, and appeals from them, and from any sentence they shall give therein, to the next lawful General Assemblie. And to their MAJESTIES Protection, for Justice, and Relief in the mean time; And Protests, That the said Libels, and Witnesses Depositions taken thereupon, may be preserved, and not put out of the way, That so the same (and not Copies thereof) may be produced to the next General Assembly; Or to any their Majesties shall be pleased, out of their Royal Authority, to appoint to consider the same: And that as the said Mr. Alexander will publish and disperse his Appeal, and his Answers to the first Libel; Which he only did see for his own Vindication from any sentence that shall follow hereupon; So he expects, and earnestly Desires, that the said Synod may Print both the Libels against him, and Depositions taken thereupon, for vindication of their Justice, (if they can conceive they have done right:) But which Mr. Alexander hopes will rather vindicate his Innocency. And further, Mr. Alexander Craves, and Protests, That this his Appeal may be insert in the Books of the Synod.

Notwithstanding of the Appeals foresaid, the Synod proceeded, and Deposed the said Mr. Alexander from his Ministry, and thereupon the Eldership of the Parish was invaded, and some few (severals of them scarce worth to be noticed as Residenters) have usurped the power of electing Elders, and have elected many more than the number formerly used, purposely as they think, to make the greater Figure; altho' but of the most inconsiderable of the Parish; and of Design to Call, Impose, and Obtrude a Minister upon the Rest against their will, contrary to the Laws of Charity, Practices of Christian Churches, and profession of Presbyterians. Notwithstanding that the said Mr. Alexander Heriot his Appeal does in Law preserve his Right, and keeps all in statu quo, the time of the Appeal, while it be discuss.

Whereupon, not only the said Mr. Alexander Heriot, but likewise the Heritors and Parishioners of Dalkeith have given in a Petition to the Lords of their Majesties most Honourable Privy Council, That they may be pleased to forbid the Calling of a Minister until the Appeal be discuss; And that in the mean time, he may be restored to the Exercise of his Ministrie. And that the Presbytery of Dalkeith; And others who had the Libels given in against him, and Depositions of the Witnesses, may make the same known to him, as Law appoints; That he may know what is libelled, or may seem to be proved, to the effect he may the better clear himself of the same, which is nothing but false lies and calumnies: And whereof severals of the Presbyterian Ministers, who have seen the Libels and Depositions, Affirm, that there is nothing pretended to be proved, But the dancing about the Bon-Fire; which is not only clearly redargued to be false as said is, there being no Bonfires either on the foresaid day, nor for several months either before or after; But likewise if the persons who have deposed it were known, and re-examined, it will be found, they have deposed falsely; And that they have been dealt with so to Depone; And that this Falshood may not be discovered, not only are the Depositions kept up, contrary to express Law and Acts of Parliament; But likewise, no notice can be gotten who were the persons who have deposed it, that they may be insisted against.

Whereas it is pretended, That the Lords of their Majesties Privy Council, are not Judges competent to the sentences of Ecclesiastick Courts, and that as they cannot put in Ministers in Churches, so they cannot meddle with sentences of Depositions. It is answered, That by the 1. Act 8 Parl. Ja. 6. It is Statute and Ordained, That his Majestie, and Council shall be Judges competent, To all Persons Spiritual and Temporal, in all matters. And to pretend, that the Council is not Judge competent competent to sentences of Ecclesiastick Courts, is no other then to affirm, That these Courts have an Arbitrary power, and may do wrong at their pleasure without Remedy or Control. For it is evident, That Mr. Herriott is most unjustly pursued and Deposed. And it is also evident, that if it be not Redressed by the Council, he will never be Restored by those Ministers, who have dealt so unjustly with him.

And whereas, it is alleaged, That as the Council cannot put in Ministers, so they cannot meddle with sentences of Deposition. It is answered, That the Council has not the power of Admission and Ordination of Ministers. But if a Minister having a lawful Call; the Presbyterie should refuse to admit and Ordain him, albeit they have nothing to object against him, upon Application to the Council or Session, Letters will be directed to Charge the Presbyterie, to Admit and Ordain him, but multo magis in this case, where a Minister is Deposed from his Ministrie, as likewise from his Benefice, (which is his Livelyhood and Maintenance) and yet most unjustly, and without Ground or Reason; The Council is most proper Judges, for Restoring him against the foresaid Oppression, Injurie, and Unjust Sentence.

And for a further evidence of this unjust Sentence, it is Humbly desired, that the Lords of Their Majesties Privy Council will be pleased to take notice, That in the first Libel there are many Articles which are not to be admitted in Law; And it is said, that there is none of them proved, but the Dancing about the Bonfire: And yet the Presbytery by their Sentence, found the Libel Relevant and Proved, which must be understood as to the whole Articles of the Libel complexlie, than which there is nothing more false, as will appear by the Libels and Depositions, if they were produced. And yet thereupon Mr. Herriott is first suspended by the Presbytery, and referred by them to the General Assembly for further Censure, as if great Immoralities in Life, and Errors in Doctrine, had been proved against him. And the Synod (to which the Assembly remitted him) following the steps of the Presbytery, deposed him. Now when Presbytery and Synod, have acted thus contrary to express Law, and have done open and manifest Unjustice; (and whereof all that heard of it are convinced and sensible) And having stated themselves Parties against him, there can be no Remedy expected from the said Unjustice, Injury, and Oppression, unless the Lords of Their Majesties Privy Council interpose their Authority.

If it be alleaged, That the late Act of Parliament, The Act of Supremacy in Church matters is Repealed; It is answered, That the Act of Parliament 1669 is Rescinded, which extended the Supremacy, to the Ordering and Disposal of the External Government and Policy of the Church, and to the Enacting of Constitutions, Acts, and Orders in the Church. But the foresaid Act of K. Ja. 6. his 8 Parliament, is not Rescinded, which is only as to the Judging of Ecclesiastick Persons in matters complained upon; and which power is inherent in the Crown, otherways there should be Regnum in Regno; and Church Judicatories should have arbitrary Power, without Redress or Control, as said is.

In Regard whereof, The Lords of Their MAJESTIES Privy Council are Judges Competent, to this Injurie, Unjustice and Oppression; And the Desire of the Petitions ought to be Granted;

ACT of the General Assembly, anent a Solemn National Fast and Humiliation, with the Causes thereof.

At Edinburgh, November 12. 1690. Postmeridiem, Sess. 25.

THE General Assembly, Having taken into their most serious Consideration, the late great and general Defection of this Church and Kingdom, have thought fit to Appoint a Day of Solemn Humiliation and Fasting, for Confession of Sins, and making Supplication to our Gracious God, to forgive and remove the guilt thereof: In order whereunto, they have Ordained the Confession of Sins, and Causes of Fasting following, to be duly Intimated and Published; Recommending it most earnestly to all persons, both Ministers and others, That every one of us may not only search and try our own hearts and ways, and stir up our selves to seek the Lord; But also in our Stations, and as we have access, Deal with one another, in all love and tenderness, to prepare for so great and necessary a Duty, that we may find mercy in God's sight, and He may be graciously reconciled to our Land in our Lord Jesus, and take delight to dwell among us.

Although our gracious God hath of late, for his own Names sake, wrought great and wonderful things, for Britain and Ireland, and for this Church and Nation in particular; Yet the Inhabitants thereof have cause to remember their own evil ways, and to learn themselves in their own sight for their Iniquities.

Alas! We, and our Fathers, our Princes, our Pastors, and People of all Ranks have sinned, and have been under great Transgression to this day. For though our gracious God shewed early kindness to this Land, in sending the Gospel amongst us, and afterward in our Reformation from Popish Superstition and Idolatry; and it had the Honour, first Reformation, solemnly devoted unto God, both Prince and People, yet we have dealt treacherously with the Lord, and been unstedfast in his Covenant, and have not walked suitably to our Mercies received from him, nor obligations to him: Through the mercy of God this Church had attained to a great purity of Doctrine, Worship, and Government, but this was not accompanied with suitable personal Reformation, neither was our Fruit answerable to the pains taken on us by Word and Work; We had much Gospel-preaching, but too little Gospel-practice; too many went on in open wickedness, and some had but a form of Godliness, denying the power thereof; many also who had the Grace of God in truth fell from their first love, and fell under sad languishings and decays; and when for our sins the anger of the Lord had divided us, and we were brought under the feet of strangers, and many of our Brethren killed, others taken Captive and sold as slaves, yet we sinned still, and after we were freed from the yoke of strangers, instead of returning to the Lord, and being led to Repentance by his goodness, the Land made open Defection from the good ways of the Lord: many behaved as if they had been delivered to work abomination, the flood-gates of Impiety were opened, and a deluge of wickedness did over-spread the Land. Who can without grief and shame remember the shameful debauchery and drunkenness that then was? And this accompanied with horrid and hellish cursing and swearing, and followed with frequent Filthiness, Adulteries, and other Abominations, and the Reprover was hated, and he that departed from Iniquity made himself a reproach or prey.

prey. And when by these, and such like corrupt practices, mens Consciences were debauched, they proceeded to sacrifice the Interest of the Lord Jesus Christ, and Priviledges of his Church to the lusts and will of men; The Supremacy was advanced in such a way, and to such an height, as never any Christian Church acknowledged; the Government of the Church was altered, and Prelacy (which hath been always grievous to this Nation) introduced, without the Churches consent, and contrair to the standing Acts of our National Assemblies, both which the present Parliament hath (blessed be God) lately found; And yet nevertheless, of the then standing Ministry of Scotland, many did suddenly and readily comply with that alteration of the Government, some out of Pride and Covetousness or Man-pleasing, some through infirmity or weakness, or fear of Man, and want of Courage and Zeal for God; many faithful Ministers were thereupon cast out, and many Insufficient and Scandalous men thrust in on their Charges, and many Families ruined, because they would not own them as their Pastors.

And alas! It is undeniable, there hath been under the late Prelacie, a great decay of Piety, so that it was enough to make a man be nicknam'd a Phanatick, if he did not run to the same excess of riot with others.

And should it not be lamented, for it cannot be denyed, there hath been in some a dreadful Atheistical Boldness against God, some have disputed the Being of God, and his Providence, the Divine Authority of the Scriptures, the Life to come, and Immortality of the Soul, yea and scoffed at these things.

There hath been also an horrid Prophanation of the Holy and Dreadful Name of God, by Cursing and Swearing: Ah! there hath been so much Swearing and Forswearing amongst us, that no Nation under Heaven have been more guilty in this than we; some by swearing rashly or ignorantly, some falsely, by breaking their Oaths, and imposing and taking ungodly and unlawful Oaths and Bonds whereby the Consciences of many have been polluted and seared, and many ruined and oppressed for refusing and not taking them.

There hath also been a great neglect of the Worship of God, too much in publick, but especially in Families, and in secret.

The wonted care of Religious sanctifying the Lord's Day is gone, and in many places the Sabbath hath been, and is shamefully prophaned.

The Land also hath been full of bloody Crimes, and Cities full of Violence; and much innocent Blood shed, so that Blood touched Blood; yea, Sodoms sins have abounded amongst us, Pride, fullness of Bread, Idleness, Vanities of Apparel, and shameful sensuality filled the Land.

And alas! how great hath been the Cry of Oppression, and Unrighteousness, Iniquity hath been established by a Law, there hath been a great perverting of Justice, by making and executing unrighteous Statutes and Acts, and sad persecutions of many for their Conscience towards God.

It is also matter of Lamentation, that under this great Defection there hath been too general a fainting, not only amongst professors of the Gospel, but also amongst Ministers; yea, even amongst such, who in the main things did endeavour to maintain their Integrity, in not giving seasonable and necessary Testimony against the Defections and Evils of the Time, and keeping a due distance from them, and some on the other hand managed their Zeal with too little Discretion and Meekness.

It is also matter of Humiliation, that when Differences fell out amongst these, who did owne Truth, and bear witness against the Course of Defection, they were not managed with due Charity and Love, but with too much heat and bitterness, injurious Reflections used against pious and worthy men on all hands, and scandalous Divisions occasioned, and the success of the Gospel greatly obstructed thereby, thereby, and some dangerous Principles drunk in: And after all this, there were shameful advances towards Popery, the Abomination of the Mass was set up in many places, and Popish Schools erected, and severals fell to Idolatry.

And though the Lord hath put a stop to the Course of Defection, and of his great mercy given us some reviving from our Bondage; yet we have sad cause to regrave and bemoan, that few have a due sense of our mercy, or walk answerable thereto, few are turned to the Lord in truth, but the wicked go on to do wickedly, and there is found amongst us to this day shameful ingratitude for our mercies, Horrid impenitency under our sins, yea, even amongst those who stand most up for the Defence of the Truth: and amongst many in our Armies, there is woful Prophaneness and Debauchery. And though we profess to acknowledge, there can be no pardon of Sins, no Peace and Reconciliation with God, but by the Blood of Jesus Christ; yet few know Him, or see the Necessity and Excellency of the Knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ; few see their need of Him, or esteem, desire, or receive Him, as he is offered in the Gospel; few are acquainted with Faith in Jesus Christ, and living by Faith on Him, as made of the Father unto us, Wisdom, Righteousness, Sanctification and Redemption; and few walk as becometh the Gospel, and imitate our Holy Lord in Humility, Meekness, Self-denial, Heavenly-mindedness, Zeal for G O D, and Charity towards Men: But as there is even until now, a great contempt of the Gospel, a great Barrenness under it; so a deep Security under our Sin and Danger, a great want of Piety toward God, and Love towards Men; with a woful Selfishness, every one seeking their own things, few the things of Christ, or the publick Good, or one anothers welfare: And finally, the most part more ready to censure the sins of others, than to repent of their own.

Our Iniquities are increased over our heads, and our Trespases are grown up into the Heavens, they are many in number, and hainous in their nature, and grievously aggravated, as having been contrair to great Light and Love, under signal Mercies and Judgments, after Confession and Supplication, and notwithstanding of our Profession, Promises and solemn Vowing, and Covenanting with God to the contrair.

Have we not then sad cause of deep Sorrow and Humiliation? And may we not fear, if we do not repent, and turn from the evil of our ways, and return to the Lord with all our hearts, that He return to do us evil, after he hath done us good, and be angry with us, until He hath consumed us?

Let us therefore humble our selves by Fasting and Praying, let us search out our sins, and consider our ways, and confess these, and other our sins, with Sorrow and Detestation; Let us turn unto the Lord with Fasting and weeping, and with mourning; Let us firmly Resolve and sincerely Engage to amend our ways and doings, and return unto the Lord our God, with all our heart, and earnestly pray, that for the blood of the Lamb of God, our sins may be forgiven, and our back-slidings healed, and we may yet become a righteous Nation, keeping the Truth, that Religion and Righteousness may flourish, and Love, and Charity abound, and all the Lord's People may be of one mind in the Lord: and in order to all these, that the Word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, and that the Preaching of the Word, and Dispensing of the Sacraments, may be accompanied with the wonted presence, Power and Blessing of the Spirit of the Lord; That the Lord would preserve and bless our gracious King and Queen, William and Mary, and establish their Throne by Righteousness and Religion, and grant to these Nations, Peace and Truth together; and for that End, bless and prosper His Majesties Councils, and Forces by Sea and Land, and those of the Princes and States his Allies, for God and his Truth, that Interior Rulers may rule rule in the fear of God, and Judges be clothed with Righteousness, and that many faithful Labourers may be sent out into the Lord's Vineyard, and they who are sent, may find mercy to be faithful, and be blest with Success, that Families may be as little Churches of Christ, and that the Lord would pour out His Spirit on all Ranks of People, that they may be holy in all manner of Conversation, and God may delight to dwell amongst us, and to do us good.

And while we pray for our selves, let us not forget our Brethren in Forreign Churches, with whom, alas! we had too little Sympathy; Nay, let us pray, that all the ends of the Earth, may see the Salvation of God; and that He would bring his antient people of the Jews to the acknowledgment of Jesus Christ; and that he would hasten the ruine of Romish Babylon, and advance the Reformation in Christendome, and preserve and bless the Reformed Churches; That he would pity His oppressed People, the French Protestants, and gather them out of all places, whither they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day; and that he would be the Defence, Strength and Salvation of any of his People, who are in War or Danger by Infidel or Popish adversaries, in Europe or America. And in particular, that the Lord would be Gracious to Ireland, and sanctifie to his People there, both their distress and deliverance; and perfect what concerneth them, that he would convert the Natives there to the Truth, and reduce that Land to Peace; and appoint Salvation for Walls and Bulwarks to Brittain.

For all these Causes and Reasons, The General Assembly hath appointed the Second Thursday of January next, to be Observed in all the Congregations of the Church and Nation, as a day of Solemn Fasting and Humiliation, and Prayer; Beseeching and Obtesting all, both Pastors, and People of all Ranks to be sincere and serious, in Humiliation and Supplication, and universal Reformation, as they would wish to find mercy of the Lord, and have deserved wrath averted, and would obtain the Blessing of the Lord upon themselves and Posterity after them; and that the Lord may delight in us, and our Land may be as Married to him. And Ordains all Ministers, either in Kirks or Meeting houses, to read this present Act publicly from the Pulpit, a Sabbath or two before the said Day of Humiliation: and that the several Presbyteries take care, that it be carefully Observed in their respective bounds. And where, in regard of Vacancies, the Day hereby appointed, cannot be observed, the Assembly appoints the said Humiliation, to be kept some other Day with the first convenient opportunity: And appoints the Commission for Visitation, to apply to the Council, for their Civil Sanction to the Observation thereof. Extracted out of the Records of Assembly, by
